BRITISH STAND DETERMINED

ITALY'S CASE MUST BE AIRED

FRANCE WILL SUPPORT LEAGUE ACTION

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, July 24. 8 a.m.)

London, July 23. Britain will press for full discussion of all the aspects of the Italo-Abyssinian dispute when the League of Nations Council considers the matter next week, says Reuter's diplomatic correspondent.

Hope of a peaceful settlement before the League Council meeting becomes increasingly remote. Only such a settlement would alter Britain's determination to insist upon the sifting of the whole quarrel.

It is confidently expected that as a result of the recent conversations between M. Laval, the French Prime Minister, and Sir George Clerk, the British Ambassador to Paris, the British demand for a full discussion will receive France's support.

During the attempts made by Britain and France in Rome to find a basis for a discussion of plans for a settlement of the Italo-Abyssinian dispute, it was gathered that Italy had not departed from her stand that nothing short of annexation or at very least political control of part or all of Abyssinia would satisfy Signor Mussolini.

The possibility of holding three-power conversations between Britain, France and Italy, as signatories of the 1906 treaty, was discussed; but in any case, it was decided, it would be difficult to hold such a meeting without an Italian undertaking that she will not resort to force.

MUST STATE CASE

The British Ambassador at Rome, Sir Eric Drummond, has been urging upon Italy the necessity of stating her case against Abyssinia freely at Geneva, but so far Italy appears reluctant. If Italy continues reluctant, and that seems probable, the vital part of the Geneva proceedings is likely to come under the scope of Article XII of the Covenant, under which League members agreed in the event of a dispute likely to lead to a rupture that they would submit the matter either to arbitration for a judicial settlement or an inquiry by the League Council, and in no case that they should resort to war until three months after the award by one or other of these investigations.—Reuter Special.

AGREEMENT REACHED

London, July 23. As a result of exchanges which have taken place it is now authoritatively stated that close agreement exists between the French and British Governments in regard to efforts they are making to obtain a peaceful solution of the Italo-Abyssinian dispute. It is widely hoped that at the League Council meeting which is to be held next week thorough ventilation of the issues involved will reveal the lines upon which such a solution may be sought.

EVACUATION PLANS

London, July 23. The Government has advised missionary societies to concentrate immediately at Addis Ababa the personnel of their organizations in Ethiopia. They were further advised that their workers should leave the country as soon as possible.

It is reported that the Legation is being made ready to house any persons who have been unable to leave the country should war break out suddenly.—United Press.

Aim To Keep Control Of Agriculture

A.A.A. AMENDMENTS FINALLY PASS

STRUGGLE IN U.S. SENATE

Washington, July 23. After a fortnight's furious debate, the Senate, by a vote of 65 to 16, finally passed the A.A.A. amendments to the Bill carrying a limited ban against suits to recover cotton processing taxes and a provision intended to validate existing crop control contracts, while the proposed price-fixing provisions are eliminated.

The amendments were introduced with a view to broadening the powers of the Farm Administration and to protect it against the mounting attacks. The Bill was changed in many respects and in no wise grants the sweeping powers requested by Mr. Henry Wallace, Secretary of Agriculture.

The amended Bill thus constitutes a compromise necessitated by the increasingly critical attitude of the Senate towards all measures the constitutionality of which is doubtful in the light of recent Court decisions.

Critics of the Administration's foreign trade policy vainly tried to curtail the President's tariff-bargaining powers by offering a restrictive rider, which, however, was turned down.

The Bill is now being sent to conference with the House of Representatives with a view to adjusting the differences between the Senate and House versions.—Reuter.

Roosevelt Attacked

CONSTITUTION HAS BEEN VIOLATED

IMPEACHMENT POSSIBLE

(Special to "Telegraph")

Washington, July 23. In a speech in the House of Representatives, Mr. Hamilton Fish, Republican Congressman, declared that President Roosevelt had violated the Constitution, adding, however, that "it would be unwise to introduce an impeachment resolution."

Republican leaders privately said several individuals were seriously considering sponsoring an impeachment.

In the course of his speech, Mr. Fish said: "An impeachment would secure much public support, as the people have decided that the President is trying to establish a new social and economic order in defiance of the Constitution, adding that much of the legislation passed at the demand of the President violates the Constitution."

Continuing, Mr. Fish said: "But if we seriously raise the question of impeachment of the President, we must likewise impeach the Democratic leaders of both Houses, who have surrendered powers to the President. I am not urging impeachment, but I would like to point out that if the President is guilty, the Democratic leaders are doubly so."

Mr. Fish added that in the 1926 election, the issue would be the restoration of constitutional government and the ending of one-man rule.—United Press.

THRILLING DAVIS CUP STRUGGLE

AMERICA'S NARROW VICTORY

QUESTIONABLE DECISION

London, July 23. America regained the lead in the final round of the Davis Cup competition, winning the doubles event from Germany to-day, but only after a thrilling fight. Allison and Van Ryn, runners-up in the Wimbledon tourney, only pulled the match out of the fire in the last minute after the German pair, Von Cramm and Lund, had wanted match point five times.

The scores were: 3-6, 6-3, 5-7, 9-7, 8-6.

It was a match of remarkable quality, one of the most spectacular Wimbledon stands have seen in a long time. Von Cramm served aces consistently and returned Allison's cannon-ball service splendidly, giving Lund opportunities to kill at the net.

The Germans set a terrific pace from the first, and won the first set in nineteen minutes. The Americans continually crowded the net. In the second set, which the Americans won in twelve minutes, they were volleying magnificently.

The Germans led 5-2 in the third set, and then wilted and allowed the Americans to force them to twelve games.

NEAR TO VICTORY

In the fourth set it seemed certain that the Germans would win the match. Twice they were fighting for match point in the tenth game. But Allison stormed the net and saved the situation by brilliant volleying.

The fifth set was perhaps the most thrilling of all. The Americans still maintained a terrific pace, and led 4-1. The Germans pulled up to 5-4, however. Von Cramm was superb in every department and Lund was crashing through service aces. Three times the Germans wanted match point, but each time the Americans rallied.

With the Americans taking their turn in a struggle for match point, on Allison's service, there was great tension. Allison's winning ace, however, was generally considered six inches out so that the end was unsatisfactory for the winners and heartbreaking for the losers.

It was conceded that the winners of the doubles match would take the round for there is little chance that Henkel, Germany's No. 2, can beat the great Allison in their singles tilt, though Von Cramm will almost certainly beat Budge.—Reuter.

GOERING STRIKES AT CATHOLICS

"WE ARE DECENT PEOPLE"

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, July 24, 5.30 a.m.)

Berlin, July 23.

Herr Goering, Reich Minister of Air, has dissolved the Reich League of Catholic Front Fighters, which is a Catholic ex-Servicemen's organization, on the ground that it is liable to carry religious differences into the ranks of German ex-Servicemen.

Julius Streicher, who is the centre of the anti-Jewish storm, foreboding laws segregating Jews throughout the country. In an interview with the Anglo, Streicher explained that segregation had already been virtually effected at Nuremberg, where the Jews have their own swimming bath, cafe, institute and special schools.

"All these have been established in the interests of the Jews themselves, because we are a decent people," added Streicher.—Reuter Special.

CHARLES DICKENS' GRANDSON

APPOINTED TO NAVY COMMAND

London, July 23.

Rear-Admiral G. C. Dickens, C.B., C.M.G., a grandson of Charles Dickens, the famous novelist, has been appointed to the command of the Reserve Fleet, in succession to Vice-Admiral Astley Rushton, who was killed in a motor accident on Friday last.

Rear-Admiral Dickens has been Director of the Naval Intelligence Division since 1932. He saw considerable service in the Great War, taking part in the Dardanelles campaign. He was Deputy Director of the Plans Division from 1920 to 1922, and from 1926 to 1929 he was on the Directing Staff of the Imperial Defence College.—Reuter.

LONDON'S NEW FREEMAN

LORD WAKEFIELD HONOURED

London, July 23.

Lord Wakefield, whose name has been especially associated in recent years with the encouragement of record-breaking attempts on land, water and in the air, received to-day the Freedom of the City of London. He is a former Lord Mayor and the honour is unlikely to be reserved generally for persons distinguished outside the city's activities.

Tributes were paid to Lord Wakefield's many acts of generosity and benevolence.—British Wireless.

DUTCH AVIATION LOSSES

TWO SERVICES BEING DISCONTINUED

London, July 23.

As a sequel to the recent series of losses in personnel and material, the Royal Dutch Air Line has decided to discontinue the North Atlantic service with Holland, as well as one of the four daily services between London and Amsterdam.—Reuter Special.

GUILDER'S FATE UNCERTAIN

HOLLAND MAY QUIT GOLD STANDARD

COLIJN'S GOVERNMENT FACING DEFEAT

The Hague, July 23.

It is generally believed that the devaluation of the guilder is inevitable because the majority of the Second Chamber favours this step.

It is learned in Parliamentary circles that Dr. H. Colijn, the Prime Minister, will advise the Queen to call on the Catholic leader, Dr. Salverse, to form a new Government. But it is expected there will be difficulties in his way as it is unlikely that the powerful Social-Democrats will co-operate with the Catholics.

The public galleries of the Lower Chamber were crowded in expectation of a vote which would be critical for the Government, and possibly for Holland's currency, to-night. At the outset, Dr. Westerman said that if the Government did not devalue its currency it would have to take effective measures to protect it. Severe control of foreign exchanges was essential to parry any new attack on the guilder, he declared. A divergence of views was indicated by subsequent speakers.

SUPPORTS SILVER POLICY

PITTMAN HAS FAITH IN TREASURY

New York, July 23.

Increased activity in the Montreal silver market is attributed to the remarks of Senator Key Pittman, Nevada's silver champion, who has stated that he is satisfied that the Treasury is carrying out its silver purchase programme successfully and in the spirit in which it was intended that it should.

At the same time, he asserts that it is inevitable that the price of silver will eventually reach $1.29 per ounce.

Commenting on the present situation, Senator Pittman declared that he was in favour of a steady and orderly price rise.

"Only recently," he recalled, "the Treasury broke the bear and taught the silver bears throughout the world a lesson they will remember."

Senator Pittman declared against the repeal of the fifty per cent. tax on silver trading, stating it was adopted as a compromise between President Roosevelt and the Silver Bloc, and that any move for its repeal without the Administration's consent would be a breach of that compromise which had resulted in the mandatory silver purchase legislation.

For the same reason, Senator Pittman had not signed the petition demanding more aggressive silver action, and the success of this petition without Senator Pittman's support is considered very doubtful.—Reuter.

SENATOR SHOT TO DEATH

TWO OTHERS WOUNDED BY ASSASSIN

Buenos Ayres, July 23.

Senator Bordabehere was shot dead and Senators Duhan and Mancini were wounded seriously, when an unidentified man sprang up and fired several shots during the afternoon debate.—Reuter.

The state of the Government became very doubtful when Dr. Salverse, the Catholic leader, announced to the Chamber that his party was unable to support the motion of confidence in the Government economic policy. The Catholics, who have twenty-eight votes out of the Chamber's 100, had hitherto supported the Government and were represented in the Cabinet by the Ministers of Justice and Defence and Economic Affairs.

Tense scenes followed the Catholic leader's announcement. Finally, Dr. Colijn decided on adjournment of the discussion, which was agreed to, and a special meeting of the Cabinet was announced for to-morrow morning.

It is expected that the Cabinet will either resign or announce the dissolution of the House.—Reuter.

ROME EXPLAINS

Rome, July 23. Official circles explain that the temporary suspension of the law concerning gold coverage of notes does not mean that the lira will be depreciated. The Italian Government intends replacing its gold reserves as soon as possible, it is explained.

The Government will exert control over the exchanges and through a quota system will be enabled to defend the lira promptly if it is attacked.—Reuter.

LIRA RALLIES

London, July 23. The lira which depreciated to 65½ following news of the Italian Government's decree regarding note cover, later rallied and closed at 61.11/16.—British Wireless.

LINDBERGH HAS TURNED INVENTOR

"MECHANICAL HEART" NOW
PERFECTED

LIFE RESTORED TO ANIMALS

By W. F. BULLOCK

New York, Friday.
Col. Charles Lindbergh, who eight years ago flew into the world's limelight, to-day stands distinguished as a great scientist.

Working with Dr. Alexis Carrel, of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research, Col. Lindbergh claims to have perfected a "mechanical heart" which confers synthetic immortality on human or animal organs.

Placed in this "chamber of artificial life" the organs, it is stated, can be infected with diseases which have baffled doctors throughout the ages, and their progress watched.

In this new field of study it is hoped that a course will be found for such dread ailments as heart disease, diabetes, tuberculosis, kidney disorders, and cancer.

SUPPLIES AIR TOO

The "heart" beats 60 times a minute and it supplies not only artificial blood but also synthetic air.

A year ago Dr. Carrel, who is a Nobel Prize winner, described Col. Lindbergh as "my best assistant in biology."

At the Rockefeller Institute he is shielded from the publicity he so much dislikes. He has luncheon with the nurses and medical staff, but instructions are given that when he is seen round the building no one must speak to him unless he first addresses them.

The story of the new artificial heart appears in the current number of Science, the official organ of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. The article bears the two signatures of Alexis Carrel and Charles Lindbergh.

AFTER 123 YEARS

In 1812, when Napoleon dominated Europe, the French scientist Gallio wrote: "If one could substitute for the heart a kind of injection of arterial blood, either natural or artificially made, one would succeed easily in maintaining alive indefinitely any part of the body whatever."

Col. Lindbergh and Dr. Carrel write modestly: "The purpose of the present article is merely to show how, after 123 years the conception of Gallio has been realised."

They have made 26 experiments since Col. Lindbergh perfected his "heart."

Using dead fowls and cats from which blood had been drained, the two workers have restored life to various organs of the body.

They report, "Thyroid glands were kept more than 20 days with pulsating arteries and active circulation. They could have remained in the apparatus much longer. No blood clots and no important haemorrhages were observed."

It is hoped that science will now learn how to check such abnormalities as goitre, dwarfism, overgrowth, and certain forms of obesity.

Col. Lindbergh's achievement is hailed as of far greater importance to science than his Transatlantic flight—yet that flight has had its place in his new work.

FASHION NOTES

Wider and Shorter
Skirts Favoured

PARIS STYLES

THE parachute silhouette, with a wide skirt, and shorter, has landed with a splash in the middle of the Paris summer season, wrecking the stream, or stem-line silhouette that has been worn for some years.

Over and over again the Paris dressmakers, at their fashion-parades, show dresses and skirts with the parachute skirt for day-time and for evening.

Indeed, the spread parachute skirt for evening dresses, and half-folded parachute for day-time dresses is the big news. Blouses with these skirts are necessarily slim, though lots of them are not fitted closely.

Everyday Wraps

Wraps, one for each dress, and each one different, are being worn in Paris. The "Depression Mood," consisting of one coat, and a wardrobe full of frocks, is not being adopted by the fashionable Parisienne.

Wraps in this season, when it is warm and sunny, are extravagant, for they offer no protection whatever; they are, though, just the same more plentiful than ever. Women have two wraps, in some cases to a single frock—a fitted, white, glazed linen jacket, and a cape of the material of the frock. Or they will have a printed, sleeveless coat and a jacket.

BRITAIN'S PROGRESS

KEEP TO THE SAME

CHAMBERLAIN
ADVISES

(Our Own Correspondent.)

London, July 6.
Mr. Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, in the House of Commons yesterday when moving the third reading of the Finance Bill, the final stage of the Budget, gave the impression that everything is going "swimmingly" and there is really nothing to worry about. Though in other countries, said the Chancellor, they were having to contemplate fresh economies and fresh taxation, "here we see the burdens growing lighter year by year."

The outlook was persistently and doggedly favourable. He mentioned these indications of prosperity:

Progress in the building industry could hardly be more satisfactory.

Railway traffic, bank clearances, and retail trade all show a steady rise.

Exports are up by £16,000,000 for the first five months of this year as compared with last year.

Imports of raw material—the best of all barometers—were £1,000,000 more than in May of last year.

These were signs and pointers to show the direction of the wind. They all pointed in the same direction and they were all hopeful.

This week, he said, 1,200,000 people were sharing in the benefits of the restoration of economy cuts. In addition, 2,250,000 tax-payers were benefitting by the increased tax allowance. He made it clear that, in his opinion, a continuance of these results depended on the continuance of the National Government and the avoidance of Mr. Lloyd George's New Deal. He put it in this way:

"These results have come about as the result of our earlier efforts and sacrifices, and if we want to maintain them and progress further along the same

AMERICA'S FIRST LADY

WHAT SHE DID FOR HER COUNTRY

ACTIVITIES
REVIEWED

By RUBY A. BLACK
United Press Staff Correspondent

Washington.
Trailing Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt for nine months is no job for a stay-at-home.

Mrs. Roosevelt recently said that she would be "off the record" until Sept. 23. But there are qualifications to that statement and even so it would be hardly more than long enough to rest up from the pace she has led since last fall.

Mrs. Roosevelt will be in Washington with the President for the Boy Scout Jamboree on August 20 and will speak at Chautauqua, N.Y., on August 23 and will go to San Diego, Calif., if the President decides to go to the exposition being held there.

For the rest of the summer Mrs. Roosevelt is keeping her plans dark except that she hopes to spend two to four weeks at the Roosevelt summer home at Campobello Island, Maine.

Here are just a few things Mrs. Roosevelt has done since last Sept. 26—and believe it or not—the most interesting things the First Lady does and says are not here—they are "off the record" the year round.

She has gone down into a practically perfect coal mine and visited practically perfect textile mills.

She has earned, for charity, by radio talks and writing, nearly as much as her husband earns as president.

She has been hostess at the biggest and fullest social season the White House has ever seen.

She has talked in open meetings, for charity, for education, for social security, for crime prevention, for work and recreation for the jobless and school-leavers young, for better housing, for peace, for honest and fair relations between employers and employees.

She has helped select a new $9,000 set of china for the White House and plan the modernization of the White House kitchens.

She has campaigned successfully—for the election of a veteran co-worker, Mrs. Caroline D'Day, to Congress.

ELECTIONEERING

She has helped organise her Hyde-Park neighbours in hopes of finding new work for people.

She used the $1,000 Gimble award to provide treatments for a boy suffering from infantile paralysis, helped wherever she could when she saw suffering or injustice in individual cases—but she never told of these.

She has honoured many women who have contributed to the country's welfare, including a speech at the dinner honouring Miss Jane Oddams shortly before she died.

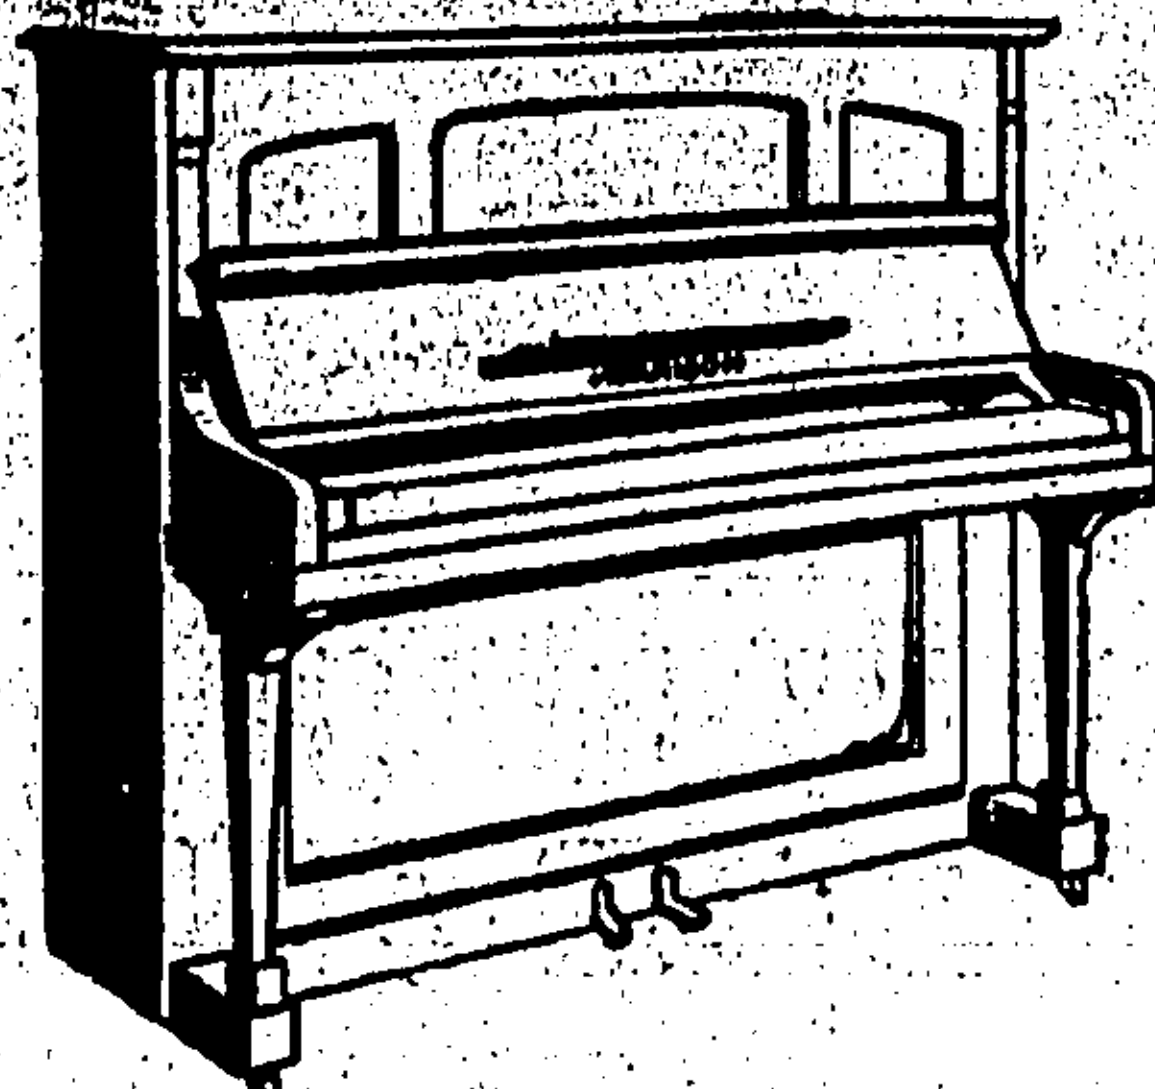

She was the first woman to make the commencement address at the University of North Carolina, and addressed graduating teachers in New York and miners and their families at Bellaire, O.

She has knitted sweaters, sponsored educational, philanthropic, and art projects, planted trees, and shaken tens of thousands of hands (as many as 6,000 in one week).

She caused the most controversy by saying, in connection with the Hauptmann verdict that she did not believe in the death penalty on circumstantial evidence.

road, we must avoid sharp reversals of policy and rash experiments calculated to undermine and dislocate public confidence." (Loud cheers.) This remark annoyed both Labour and the Samuelite Liberals but the third reading was carried by 163-11.

TOO MANY SEEKING SAFE JOBS

INITIATIVE BECOMING SUPPRESSED?

BY DR. E. D. LABORDE

WE live to-day in a country which is over-populated to the extent of some 15 millions of people. Our towns and roads are crowded to a density far beyond the optimum. Our daily journey to our work, our visits to the cinema, or the sports ground, must all take place in the midst of an inconvenient press of our fellow men.

Such conditions are rapidly forcing us to adapt ourselves more and more to living in crowds; and crowds need regulation.

This comes partly from within the individual and partly from external authority. The individual recognises the need for orderliness, without which anarchy would reign, and his immediate response is what may be termed the queue-habit.

Anyone who watches a crowd at a tube booking-office will realise how well developed this habit is among us. But however advantageous its practical effects may be, its ultimate influence on the nation cannot fail to be the suppression of initiative and individuality.

When individual action is inadequate, external authority steps in. A grandmotherly State attempts to protect us from our potential folly at street-crossings, to save us from excessive drink, to shelter us from "accident" in workshop and factory.

We have become accustomed to being formed up and passed along by attendants in one place, by officials in another, and by policemen in the streets. No force of initiative can survive constant shepherding.

The development of economic "rationalisation" tends in the same direction. Modern large-scale businesses, with their improved organisation and increased mechanical processes, have secured a grip on the nation which, whether we like it or not, is bidding fair to curtail our freedom in the most intimate spheres of life. It pays to follow the crowd, and only those who can afford high prices can escape the economic strait-jacket.

THE CHILD-MIND

While these conditions affect the nation at large, special influences tend to sap the initiative of the young. The substitution of "reasoning" with the child for discipline too often involves the constant imposition of a strong adult personality on the child-mind, with the result that the growth of initiative and independence of thought is atrophied. That is one of the reasons why the boys and youths of to-day cannot amuse themselves.

As soon as school life begins, the modern boy enters on the struggle of life. It is a paradox that competition should reach its highest degree of severity in an age which seeks to abolish it.

Strenuous competition at school and university for qualifications which will secure a good start in life leaves little time for thought at the very age when mental activity should be greatest. Only in some of the older foundations is their leisure to digest what is read.

When the struggle is over and the usual qualifications gained, young men do not feel disposed to risk the loss of several years' grind by striking out on a new venture. Hard-won ground must be maintained. They therefore tend to seek "safe" jobs, and only the most adventurous dare stray from the beaten paths.

UNPRODUCTIVE

Besides, the tradition of our schools is to encourage the best pupils to aim at "black-coated" jobs, since these are supposed to be the most respectable and have reasonable security of tenure.

The result is that our best brains are diverted into careers that are not productive. This is less true now than it was five or ten years ago; but it is still far more true than it should be.

The severity of competition in finding openings makes the penalty for early failure too heavy for the ordinary young man to face the risk of it. Once out of the stream of recruits which flows from school to office and factory, the daring spirit who has struck out on a new line and has, perhaps through no fault of his own, failed to achieve his object, finds the greatest difficulty in re-entering it.

His school authorities have a new batch of "leaving-pupils" to place, and the employer is suspicious of applicants of unusual age.

Added to all this, incentives to adventure are fast disappearing from the modern world. Avenues have been closed and prizes reduced.

THE FUTURE

Vocations which were formerly precarious have become "safe" through the introduction of salaried posts. To strike out for oneself is perhaps to meet with the opposition of a large monopolistic concern or even the State itself. There is a feeling, too, that everything has been tried.

What the outcome of this repression of initiative will be one hardly dares to contemplate. Its political effects are already evident in certain countries. Foreign methods are unlikely to be copied here, but our own nation seems to be in danger of what may be called the dictatorship of crowd instinct. The "good form" of pre-war days has gone, to be replaced by another and stronger—though not dissimilar—force; that of the herd which overwhelms and swallows up the individual.

TITANOTHERE

Pasadena, Cal., July 11.

Discovery of the fossilised skeleton of a giant Titanotheres, a beast that roamed the Amargosa desert area more than forty million years ago, has been revealed by Dr. Chester Stock, paleontologist of the California Institute of Technology.

The rare find was made in a virtual graveyard of pre-historic beasts, a rock ledge where a titanotheres skull and other bones previously have been dug out.

A herd of the queen animals, which resembled somewhat a huge lumbering rhinoceros with two blunt horns, apparently perished here while the now torrid valley of here rock was a moist green meadow.

The Institute established a camp of fossil-hunters in the desert to search the area thoroughly.—United Press.

LAN TAU MURDER CASE

MAN CHARGED WITH KILLING FRIEND

The trial of Tse Tam, a poultry keeper, for the murder of Chan Hang-lak, fisherman, at Tong Fuk Village, Lan Tau Island, in the hours of June 11, commenced at the Criminal Sessions yesterday afternoon before the Puisne Judge, Mr. Justice R. E. Lindell.

Mr. J. A. Fraser, Assistant Attorney General, instructed by Mr. W. J. Lockhart-Smith, appeared for the Crown, and the accused was defended by Mr. Lo Tung-fan, instructed by Mr. H. A. de B. Botelho.

The jury empanelled comprised Messrs. T. J. J. Fenwick (Foreman), G. J. C. Sommer, Tung Lim-cho, W. E. Hunt, H. Soltan, U Tak-choe, and A. E. Gutierrez.

Outlining the facts of the case, Mr. Fraser informed the jury that there were three possible verdicts for them to return, (1) "Guilty," (2) "Not guilty," and (3) "Not guilty."

Under Delusions

The accused, said counsel, was a duck-keeper, fisherman and farmer at the Tong Fuk Village, Lan Tau Island, and he was the man whom he killed. On the afternoon of June 10, the accused and the deceased went to sleep in a hut belonging to the latter's brother.

Several days before the tragedy the accused was under certain delusions, for example about ducks and about being threatened. He went to the hut to sleep that night and nothing happened until three o'clock next morning when a man went to call him to go to the door of the hut. He heard the accused calling out: "I have chopped and killed Chan Hang-lak (deceased)."

On hearing this, the caller went away to inform various persons in the village. Together they went to the hut where they heard accused shouting out: "Don't open the door or I will get excited. Fire a rocket and call a police launch."

One of the men then went to the Police launch which was anchored at the bay nearby and made a report. A police officer came to the hut and found the accused squatting down with an axe in both hands. At the request of the Police officer, accused handed the axe to him. Lying across the door of the hut was the dead man.

Reply to Charge

The accused had never denied striking the blow. There were only two men in the hut at the time, the accused and the deceased. When charged, the accused said: "I didn't murder Chan Hang-lak but I did strike and kill him. His country people wanted to murder me on the fifth day of the fifth moon but failed. At last they told me to remove to the hut of the deceased. Deceased asked them to give me a change but without success that night."

The case for the Crown, concluded Mr. Fraser, was that the accused was weak-minded by not insane. Dr. A. Greaves, Government Bacteriologist, testified to finding human blood on the covering but not sufficient blood on the axe to test it. On a chopper he found much human blood.

Medical Evidence

Dr. Ingram Shaw, medical officer in charge of Victoria Mortuary, deposed to having performed a post-mortem examination on deceased. Death was due to fracture of the skull which, in his opinion, was caused by three of the five wounds on the head. The axe produced in Court was the weapon with which all the wounds could have been inflicted. In his opinion, the wounds were inflicted from the right side with deceased sitting down.

Referring to the mental condition of accused, Dr. Shaw said he was physically strong but the size of his head was well below normal. The accused was suffering from persecution by "wargoes" in heaven, and that he was charged with electricity, and that he believed the deceased intended to kill him.

Accused's Mentality

Cross-examined by Mr. Lo, witness said that the accused with his physique could have inflicted the blows while under normal condition. Mr. Lo: What conclusion have you come to about his mental condition?

Dr. Shaw: I believe he is a man far below normal intelligence. At an examination which I conducted with him, he behaved in a strange and abnormal manner. He went through a series of antics which appeared abnormal. He declared he was suffering from persecution by "wargoes" in heaven, and that he was charged with electricity, and that he believed the deceased intended to kill him.

At another examination he seized a towel and tied it round his head like an Indian. He then made a hole in the towel, peeped through it and at the same time went down on his knees and hands. He told me that he was preserving his strength through this hole. From his actions I came to the conclusion that he was suffering from some delusions.

Delusion Symptoms

Is a man of small head and low intellect an easy prey to delusions? Not necessarily, but it rather suggests that. Delusion is only present in one particular subject. Towards other subjects the patient may be perfectly sound.

It is proved that the man was under delusions a few days before the time of the tragedy, would that state of mind continue up to the actual time of the murder?—It is impossible for me to say.

If you take it that there were delusions before and after that time, would you take it that there was continuity of that state of mind?—It does not necessarily follow. In this case he may continue to have delusions, then stop and then continue again.

In reply to another question, Dr. Shaw said it was very unlikely that accused was standing up when the blows were inflicted.

Abnormal Behaviour

Re-examined by Mr. Fraser, witness stated he noticed no change in the accused while he was under his care. Accused, it appeared to him, once he started off on any particular topic would go on and on. When he came to Victoria Gaol, accused did not appear to be oppressed by its surroundings. He appeared as if he had been there all his life. That did not seem to witness as being normal.

A man of accused's intellect would know the difference of chopping wood and chopping ducks. He could not, however, know what was right, in the sense that the other man was going to attack him and he retaliated.

His general sense of right or wrong was in a lesser degree than a man of higher intelligence. In reply to his Lordship, witness agreed that delusions of persecution frequently gave rise to homicidal mania. If a person was in that condition he did not know what was right or wrong but he knew what he was doing.

Another Opinion

Dr. D. J. Valentine, acting Deputy Director of Medical and Sanitary Services, was then called. He said he had examined the prisoner on two occasions, and that as a result of these he came to the conclusion that accused was a man of very low intellect and weak-minded. He could not read or write, and could answer only simple and straightforward questions. In his opinion, a man of weak-mindedness and low intellect was an easy prey to delusions.

In the present case he was not convinced that accused had any delusions. Accused was a difficult man to converse with, being very slow in grasping the meaning of any question, and he gave fantastic and childish answers.

In his opinion the accused knew the difference between right and wrong, and according to his experience with him, he could not certify that prisoner was insane.

Uneasy in Mind

Chan Ping-tak, fisherman, brother of the murdered man, testified that he knew the accused, who had lived in a hut in Tong Fuk Village for several years. On the fifth day of the fifth moon, five days before the murder, accused had told him that he was feeling something uneasy in his mind.

On the night of the tragedy, accused slept in the same hut as witness's brother. Witness heard no disturbance during the night but at 2 a.m. Chan Fuk, also a fisherman, called him. Together with another man, Yuen Fat, they proceeded to the hut. The door was locked from the inside and witness recognised a voice as that of the accused. The voice said: "I have chopped Chan Hang-lak to death. Don't open the door. Go and call the police."

One of them had a torch and on shining it through a hole in the door, they saw the accused sitting and the deceased lying down.

Best of Friends

Shown the axe by Mr. Fraser, witness said it belonged to him (witness) and was kept under the bed where he slept and the deed of had slept.

The chopper was the property of the accused. As far as he knew both his brother and accused were on good terms.

Cross-examined by Mr. Lo, witness said that his brother was the best friend of prisoner's. Between June 7 and 9, three days previous to the

GOLD BLOC SCARE

WEAKNESS OF GUILDER AND LIRA

London, July 23. The evergreen Gold Bloc scare is again gripping the City's attention, but paradoxically it is not the lira but the guilder on which interest is centred.

It is pointed out that Italy's adherence to the gold standard has long been largely theoretical rather than practical, and therefore will not be much affected by the decision to reduce the gold cover.

The lira was quoted in London at 63.75 compared with 60.12 last night, while at Paris the rate was 118 francs per 100 lira, compared with 124.75.

The City has for a long time been pessimistic about Italian finances, and Abyssinian developments have intensified this nervousness.

To-day the Dutch chamber voted on the Economy Bill and the market is attaching great importance to the result of the vote as the rejection of the Bill would create a political crisis.

The fate of the Bill depends on the action of the Roman Catholic Party.

Should the Government be defeated, the market expects a fresh attack on the guilder, which explains the present weakness in both spot and forward rates. Reuter.

CHINESE "TICKETS"

crime, accused had said he had been frightened by "spirits." He believed the story because accused had asked his brother to sleep with him.

What the accused actually said when he was indicted, the but said: "Don't open the door. If you do I will come out and cut several more. Go to Chunging Chau, report the matter to the inspector, and have the police here and get me arrested."

Re-examined by Mr. Fraser, witness said as far as he knew there had been no attack on accused on the night of the crime. He held accused responsible for the death of his brother, although they had been the best of friends. Accused must have had the intention of killing his brother, otherwise he would not have done so. He could not, however, suggest any motive for the killing apart from the fact that accused wanted to kill his brother.

Chan Fuk, fisherman, of Tong Fuk Village, deposed to going to the hut where the accused and the deceased were, and gave evidence corroborating that of the previous witness.

"Asked by Ghost"

Yuen Fat, fisherman, farmer and elder of Tong Fuk village, testified that when he went to the hut he asked accused if he had killed Chan Hang-lak. Accused replied: "Yes, a ghost of someone who died a violent death told me to do it."

Serjeant L. Stephens stated that he was on patrol in No. 2 Police Launch when he received a message in consequence of which he went to the hut. He saw accused squatting in the middle of the hut holding an axe in his hands. He handed it to witness, who took it. The deceased was lying face downwards near the door.

In reply to Mr. Lo, witness said when he saw accused he did not appear in any way out of the ordinary. He seemed to be quite sane.

Inspector A. H. H. Ton deposed to visiting the hut on the day of the murder. He found a considerable quantity of dried blood on the floor and some on a chopper. There was no sign of a struggle at all.

After the scene was cleared, a police officer at the Central Police Station, and read out the statement made by accused when he was first charged, by Lordship adjourned the case until 10 o'clock this morning.

ROAD SAFETY

The fact that the Ministry of Transport in London is circulating fifteen million copies of the "Highway Code" to all householders in Great Britain indicates the importance which the authorities place on acquainting the public with rules which are considered necessary for the safety of users of the roads. The Code is a summary, in simple language, of such rules, affecting the pedestrian as well as the motorist. Hongkong, some little time back, had a "Safety First" campaign, extending over a period of two weeks, and general opinion was that it proved of value. The effort, however, was too circumscribed to be really lasting in its effects, and the thought does arise whether or not the authorities here should not take steps somewhat similar to those now being put into effect at Home. The suggestion comes at an appropriate moment, seeing that there has just been issued a full and completely revised set of traffic regulations. So far, however, the only publicity given to these regulations has been their appearance in the Government Gazette, an organ which very few members of the general public ever have occasion to consult. These regulations, which number close on two hundred, occupy about fifty pages of the Gazette. They apply, of course, to all types of vehicles, whether privately-owned or public motor-cars, buses, lorries, rickshas, public chairs, or trucks, and details are given of the various parking stands for motor-cars. So far as motorists are concerned, the information given is of the greatest value; indeed, every motorist is supposed to acquaint himself with the regulations. Very few, however, will be likely to order the Gazette for this purpose, and although the rules are usually also published and sold in booklet form, it would appear that those concerned could be much better served by being supplied with pamphlets setting out those regulations which directly affect them. In this way, the companies operating public services and the individual car-owner could be separately served, with only those parts of the regulations which directly concern them. There would then be no excuse for anyone not knowing the exact requirements of the law. At the same time, the authorities might consider the desirability of issuing free of charge similar circulars for pedestrians, setting forth the obligations required of them in co-operating in safety on the roads. Measures such as these would be far more effective and lasting in their results than spasmodic "Safety First" campaigns.

NOTES OF THE DAY

FAIR ENOUGH

A word in defence of the reported decision of Great Britain to allow the exportation of arms to Abyssinia. Up to the present Britain has scrupulously avoided any action which might contribute to a stiffening of the Abyssinian attitude against Italy and result in encouraging that country to go to war in defence of its independence. Britain has genuinely endeavoured to prevent the entry into Africa of any armaments which might be used for war, in keeping with the undertaking given by the British Government jointly with other interested European nations. But the position becomes somewhat altered when a European power, which insisted upon depriving Abyssinia of any means of defence, herself loads transports with every modern engine of destruction and builds up on Abyssinia's frontier an enormous force for the prosecution of an offensive campaign. We do not suppose that any fair-thinking man would willingly stand by without interfering if he saw a well-armed belligerent about to maim an, unarmed neighbour, no matter what the colour of his skin. Britain's decision can be justified, too, by the fact that no other nation, except Italy, has taken any steps to enforce an embargo against Abyssinia. At the same time, Britain will show no favouritism. If Italy wants to buy British munitions she will not be prevented. It all seems fair enough. If it were possible to prevent both of the antagonistic nations from obtaining weapons, Britain, we believe, would be the first to deny them the opportunity. But under the circumstances it would seem not only unjust, but deliberately encouraging to Italy's plan of conquest, to forbid the export of defensive weapons to the Ethiopians.

RULERS VS. REASON

Ban and banishment appear to be the best answers a dictatorship can make to newspapers and writers whose treatment of the regime is considered inexpedient. For evidence, there's the New York Times, banned, and a Chicago Tribune reporter, banished; from Italy for sayings unpleasant to the Fascist fancy. Probably it should be put more seriously than that. Dictators are not dilettante about these matters. They do not follow the press closely merely for entertainment, and mete out rebuke in any we-are-not-amused attitude. Behind the strict watch which Mussolini's agents keep over foreign periodicals in Italy is a compulsion that citizens of more democratic countries may find hard to appreciate. Dictatorships walk tight ropes. They are not balanced, as are representative governments, on the broad base of public opinion. They do not thrive on opposition, that acknowledged requisite factor welcome in the representative system. They dare not depend on reason for support. They must meet slander, argument or fact with one clumsy weapon—force. An effective weapon, yes, temporarily. But still a clumsy one. For it thoroughly persuades nobody, not even the users, of the soundness of the cause in which it is wielded. And loyalty to be lasting must be of the head as well as of the heart. Dictators may imagine they can think for all those under their rule, that they can prevent their subjects from thinking any but officially prescribed thoughts. But can dictators prevent men from thinking? Perhaps. But only for a while.

EQUITABLE ARRANGEMENTS

The fact of the matter is that in order to keep her export markets in such countries as the republics of South America, Britain must offer that territory some quid pro quo, and at the present juncture the "most favoured nation" clauses and various other economic arrangements seem to be the only means of guaranteeing an open door to British products in such areas. As a result of the Ottawa Conference, the export trade of the Dominions to the United Kingdom has been materially increased. And at the same time, although restrictions and embargoes may cause heart-burnings, the policy of the British Government in arranging trade agreements with foreign countries has been largely responsible for the increase of $14,300,000 in Great Britain's export trade for the first five months of 1935 as compared with the total for that period of 1934. Simultaneously, Britain's imports rose $4,000,000 in the same period. Britain might do worse than follow the present system, which, though it may require adjustment in detail, seems to be based upon a reasonably sound and practical foundation.

BRITAIN MUST GROW MORE FOOD

By COLLIN BROOKS

It is one of the weaknesses of democracy that Demos is led by easy, vivid catch-phrases. What Bret Harbo called "saber cuts of Saxon speech" stir the imagination and save the mind the trouble of thinking. Most political catch-phrases serve an excellent purpose, up to a point. Then they become treacherous. The new Prime Minister has found for us the necessary injunction, "Look to your meat!" The days when Britain had a meat that could keep out the attacker have passed, but even if we take the phrase as a metaphor the warning demands a double thought. It is necessary that we see to it that our defences are stout—but it is also necessary that we see to it that behind those defences the garrison is well provisioned.

According to the census of 1931 there are in Great Britain nearly 46,000,000 people.

We consume every year food to the value of about £639,000,000.

Of this amount we produce no more than £250,000,000 worth from our own soil.

We depend on over-seas suppliers for £389,000,000 worth of food each year.

If we look on ourselves, as we must in troubled times, as a garrison on these islands, there must be ferried over that most of ours, this vast quantity of food-stuffs.

If the supplies fail for only a bare three weeks, our lives are in chaos. Trade as we know it ceases, and we become a people precariously rationed by Authority, as we were in the grim middle and later years of the war when enemy submarines were holding up the ferries of food.

Whatever else we do or don't do, unless we ensure that these supply ships reach us regularly and safely we arrive, in war, their failure to arrive means defeat.

That is one side of the question. This is the other!

Every year we pay out nearly £400,000,000 for foreign food.

In theory the people from whom we buy should be taking our manufactures in exchange or paying us interest on our foreign loans.

In practice the return-bargain may not be made, or the interest payments may fall into default.

We must have their produce; they need not have our goods in exchange, and they may fall to reciprocate in any other way.

Because of various political needs the food orders that go out to the various nations which supply us, both British and foreign, are subjected to various arrangements—quotas and the like.

These arrangements mean that neither the prices we pay nor the goods we get follow anything like a "natural" trend.

Our need for imported food cannot even satisfy the Free-Trade fanatic who would have every part of the globe employed on its easiest produce, no matter into what terrible straits this might sling any particular nation in times of crisis.

It certainly cannot satisfy anybody who desires to see a Britain defensively and economically set above mischance.

In 1918 the war had compelled us to do with our soil what nations like Holland, Belgium, Denmark, and France have always done—make the most of it as a food producer.

The area under crops now in England and Wales is only 75 per cent. of the acreage in 1918.

More and more land has gone to grass since the end of the war; pasture acreage has risen steadily and without check since 1919.

Wheat, which is our staple food product, has suffered a decline in production of quite 50 per cent. We could, if we wished, double our wheat production.

Of the total agricultural acreage in 1918, over one-seventh now lies fallow.

After the lesson of 1916-18 we should never have permitted the fall back in national-food production.

Even had we lacked that lesson, forethought and care for the benefit and future of our race should have taught us that the more food we produce by our own hands from our own soil the better for us.

There is no graver error in statecraft than to try to view any question as a matter of economics only. The economic cost of a policy may be amply repaid by the political and social benefits.

One of the secrets of Britain's industrial greatness has been that the urban communities have been constantly refreshed with rural stock. One of the symptoms of national decadence is the rapid diminution of rural stock.

There is yet another aspect which cannot be overlooked.

Men and women flourish more when they are fed on the foods and drinks that are traditional and native to their beings.

One need not be a particularly hazy mystic to agree that jangled nerves and a wearied mind can be steadied and refreshed by a return to the land in which one was bred and to one's native air.

Still less need one be a mystic to realise that the fresh native food of one's own land has a virtue that is lacking in alien and exotic foods transported under artificial conditions of storage from the ends of the earth.

On every count we must condemn the national habit of relying more and more on supplies of less excellent food from over-seas.

Our national safety, our national progress, and our individual welfare demand that we grow more food.

The Very Idea!

THIS EFFICIENCY BUSINESS

By Eddie Kelly, Live-Wire

SINCE last night we have become efficient all over. It all came about through reading the advertisements in an American magazine.

We get a kick out of any modern advertisements that we see.

In fact we got so many kicks out of reading our American magazine last night that we became black and blue all over.

"What? A hundred and eighty years old to-day! My dear, you don't look a day over 170. However do you do it?"

"It's that new Creme de Laichikok Foreshore Mud, darling. I just put it on between meals. And just fancy! It comes in 57 different varieties, to suit any size face!"

"Oo, la, la! I must buy a keg of it immediately!"

Now, that's the stuff to give 'em.

Take the case of our old pal Whalesteeth.

Wealthy, he is, with pots of money. Good looking and of noble birth, he had a luxurious steam yacht and a steam train and railway station. Yet everybody avoided him.

When he walked into a theatre the whole audience made a dive for the fire exits. He couldn't make it out. Even his best friends wouldn't tell him.

As soon as they saw him coming they stepped on it and aimed for the nearest horizon. But at last one of his enemies told him—by letter.

You guessed it—he had halitosis. Ninety per cent. of our unhappy marriages in Hongkong are due solely to this ravaging disease.

That makes you sit up, doesn't it?

Sit down again and we'll tell you about another fellow.

He thought: "Holy Mikol! Another second of this and I'm asphyxiated!" But, just to be polite, he said: "You stick here. I'm going to throw myself into the harbour."

That ought to be enough to make any self-respecting girl go and wash herself all over with Life's Soap.

Take our own case. We received a letter saying, "Are you an unemployed journalist? WHY NOT BECOME AN UNEMPLOYED ARCHITECT?" We could have been anything; electrical engineer, lift-driver, deep-sea diver; all by signing the dotted line and sending no money.

We became an architect in three weeks. Our wife, who read all the instructions, became an architect, too. If young Eddie had been old enough to read he'd have been an architect.

We used to practice on each other.

The wife would fall through the front door and say:

"I got that there raise, Eddie! That brings me up to $11,559.59 per, an' next week they're going to make me managing director!"

And we'd say:

"And it's all due to the Inter-changeable Correspondence School! Now we'll be able to get that yellow and red blanket for next winter."

When we sit down and strap ourselves into a chair and think of how on earth we got on before there were any advertisements, when we didn't have phorria or halitosis, or unsightly hairs, skin blemishes, no ambition, couldn't play music on a saw, couldn't hold board meetings, spellbound, and were never offered the opportunity to earn $1,000 a week giving away packets of giant beans—well, it makes us feel sorry for us, when we look back on ourselves.

Picture of young Hongkong wife proving to husband just how much she needed dough to keep up appearances.

"Never mind reading all that stuff about your parents. What does it say about how I was dressed?"

BRITAIN BELIEVES IN LEAGUE

PEACE BALLOT'S DISCLOSURE

BALDWIN'S RESPONSE

The Prime Minister, Mr. Baldwin, and the Foreign Secretary, Sir Samuel Hoare, to-day received a deputation of organisers of the National Declaration on Peace and Disarmament, commonly known as the Peace Ballot, in which eleven and a half million votes were cast out of an estimated possible thirty million.

The deputation, led by Lord Cecil, presented the result of the voting on six questions submitted, which varied from majorities of thirteen to one in favour of support of the League of Nations, to three to one in favour of the employment of military sanctions. The majority for total abolition of military and naval armaments by international agreement was four to one.

Lord Cecil said half a million voluntary workers, by whose services the ballot was taken, had found everywhere, but especially in the humble homes, an eagerness to vote and a very intelligent appreciation of the issues.

The Dean of Chichester emphasised the great interest the churches had taken in the national declaration. It had revealed a marked development of opinion, for many who started with pacifist opinions had come to see that the full doctrine of the Covenant was vital to the preservation of peace. Miss K. D. Courtney said the ballot had appealed to women because it represented a recognition of the value of the judgment and intelligence of the ordinary citizen, and because it enlisted the support of people of all parties.

PREMIER'S REPLY

The Prime Minister welcomed the deputation, which, he said, would be aware that the foreign policy of His Majesty's Government was founded upon the League. That had been made plain many times in declarations and by their actions at Geneva, where they had taken the lead in endeavouring to secure a settlement of international disputes by peaceful means, in accordance with the Covenant. He would not discuss the questions submitted in the ballot in detail, some of which frankly he would wish to see put in a different form, but he could not but be grateful for the deputation's action in coming to see him and to know that the object of the ballot was not to criticise the Government, but to show that a large volume of public opinion was behind them in the efforts they were making to-day to maintain the authority of the League.

He concluded:—"We are living in a period of very disturbed international relations, and I am glad of this opportunity to assure you that the Government intend to persist in the policy they have hitherto pursued, and that the League remains the sheet anchor of British policy."—British Wireless.

JAPANESE FLIER'S PLANS

LEAVING HONGKONG TO-MORROW

Katsurao Aoi, the Japanese aviator who is flying from England to Oosaka, and who arrived in the Colony last Friday, will, climatic conditions being favourable, leave for Shanghai via Amoy to-morrow morning.

It was Aoi's intention to hop off from Kai Tak to-day but in view of last night's storm and the present unsettled condition of the weather, he has postponed his departure.

Aoi will stop at Amoy for about half an hour on his way to Shanghai.

TIN MARKET

GOVERNMENT TO BE QUESTIONED

On the metal market, the cash price of tin was down to £235 per ton after yesterday's sudden rise to £245.

Questions are to be asked in the House of Commons to-morrow regarding yesterday's events and what action the Government propose to take through representations to the International Tin Control Committee.—British Wireless.

GLOUCESTER BUILDING FIRE

EXCITEMENT IN ARCADE LAST NIGHT

Considerable excitement was caused shortly before 7 o'clock last night when dense clouds of smoke poured out of the premises in the East Arcade of the Gloucester Building occupied by Messrs. Gilman & Co., Ltd.

In response to an alarm from the Des Voeux Road-Pedder Street street alarm five appliances, under Superintendent H. T. Brooks, quickly arrived on the scene from the Central Fire Station.

The premises were closed when the Brigade arrived and it was necessary to use axes to force an entry.

Pungent fume-laden smoke poured in a dense cloud down the arcade as soon as the plate-glass windows were smashed and firemen were forced to don gas-masks in order to fight the fire from close quarters.

The outbreak was subdued within a few minutes, less than a quarter of an hour elapsing from the time the first call was received at the Central Fire Station at 6.40 p.m.

The fire is believed to have started in an electric refrigerator. The premises, which are just opposite the Hongkong Electric block, and contents were considerably damaged, principally by water, which flooded out the entire arcade. Fortunately all adjoining shops are raised above the arcade floor and water entered none of them.

Messrs. Gilman & Co. took over the premises on April 1, moving their liquor department from Ice House Street in order to cope with increased business.

FEW AFFECTED

Missionary societies in the United Kingdom have been warned by the Government that British missionaries who are scattered in very remote districts of Abyssinia should be advised to concentrate in the neighbourhood of Addis Ababa. Missionaries affected, with their wives and families, number less than a hundred, and if they desire that their wives and families should leave the country suitable arrangements will be made for their departure.—British Wireless.

EDEN'S TASK

London, July 23. It is expected that the Minister for League Affairs, Mr. Anthony Eden, will be the principal British delegate at the League Council meeting which will seek to find a solution to the Italo-Abyssinian dispute on July 29.

Total ordinary expenditure, exclusive of self-balancing items, is £225,746,766, against £218,498,733 at the corresponding date of 1934.—British Wireless.

The British destroyers Dainty and Diana, which left here for Weihaiwei on Monday afternoon put into Amoy for shelter. They left at midnight, when the weather abated, for Foochow.

The P. & O. s.s. Rawalpindi will sail from a central buoy at noon on Saturday, 27th instant. The last launch will leave the P. & O. Pier at 10 a.m. and 11 a.m. on Saturday.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

MARKET IRREGULAR YESTERDAY

New York, July 23.

The following reports on the New York Stock market have been received through Messrs. Swan, Culbertson & Fritz:

The Wall Street Journal report on yesterday's market:—Stocks to-day were irregular. Profit-taking caused favourite issues to decline, but railroad securities were upward. Stocks on the Curb Exchange were also irregular. Utility and mining issues were strong. Bonds were upward, led by railroad issues.

S. C. & P. New York office cables: Securities were in moderate supply. After an active opening, traders became cautious.

New York and Chicago commodity reports received through Messrs. Swan, Culbertson & Fritz: Cotton: Prices declined on liquidation of July options and continued favourable reports regarding the progress of the crop.

Wheat: Reports of damage to the crop are plentiful and the drought in the Argentine continues, but outside buying was sporadic and was insufficient to absorb profit and hedge sales. The mill markets are weak. Long interests are believed to be large.

Corn: Excellent crop news, weather conditions and the available supplies of Argentine corn continue to remain market factors.

Rubbers: Foreign financial and political news are unsettling factors. The "spot" market is quiet. Hedge lifting is absorbing small liquidation. The technical position of the market is healthy.

The decision to place the entire county, of which Terre Haute is the centre, under martial law was made in Indianapolis, under the order of Governor Paul V. McNutt, who had been appealed to by the local authorities, namely the sheriff and mayor of Terre Haute, who feared that they would not be able to cope with the increasing unrest from workers in the affected area, where a general strike was called at 1 a.m. to-day.

A force of 600 troopers was ordered into the area.—United Press.

Pickets Broken

Terre Haute, Ind., July 23. The Military used tear gas to disperse 4,000 pickets, while the escort accompanying the tear gas plant also broke the road blockade. Things are rapidly being restored to normal.—United Press.

FATHER AND SON QUALIFY FOR LAWN BOWLS FINAL

PERRY HUSTLED BY VAN RYN

Champion's Second Match At Wimbledon

(By H. S. Scrivener)

London, June 28. When the reigning champion is on court his match is bound to be the one of paramount importance, unless it is one which he is likely to win easily. Perry's second match in the singles, which was also the second on the centre court, was of paramount interest yesterday because, although he was expected to beat J. Van Ryn, it was fully realised that he was up against a proposition of some toughness, even though Van Ryn is not ranked as high as he once was in America and does not now come in her first ten.

However, he always seems happy and comfortable at Wimbledon, especially on the centre court, and, thanks to his clever volleying and plucky ground play, gave us an exhilarating exhibition of the aggressive game which Perry found hard to combat, and did not combat, I feel bound to add, particularly well. He was never as it turned out, in any danger of losing, but, having gained the mastery after losing a rather happy-go-lucky first set, he failed to press his advantage home in the manner befitting a champion.

SCRAMBLING FINISH

He eventually emerged triumphant in the fourth set, after what can only be characterised as a bit of a scramble. It is possible that Van Ryn took him somewhat unawares, it is also possible that he allowed the match to prolong itself in order that he might test his stamina. Such things are done, but there is to be said in his favour. He went through the ordeal unscathed. Yesterday his drives were, I thought, often lacking both in length and sting, though he made some priceless shots at times, the backhand pass down the forehand being very shaky, and his something none too good, and, being the fine volleyer that he is, he fudged about on the baseline much more than is necessary, when he might be using his most potent weapon.

In the first set Van Ryn lost the upperhand after each had lost a service, and had a set point for 6-3, which Perry saved with a cross backhand pass, and made it 5-4. However, he lost his service to follow, and that was that. But thereafter he dominated the game more or less completely, in spite of one or two service lapses, and won the second and third sets by 6-1, 6-2.

DELAYED MATCH POINTS

In the fourth he went to 4-1, but had not quite reckoned with the man on the other side of the net, who went for him to such good purpose that they found themselves at 5-5 after Perry had had two match points for 6-3 (and seemed to think that he had won the second of them), and had then lost his service. After this the service proceeded, amid tense excitement, until Perry captured Van Ryn's service for 9-8 and got there at 10-8 on his own.

It is worth noting that, with G. P. Hughes and N. Sharpe both winning their matches, Great Britain supplies a quarter of the last sixteen in the men's singles.

Another seeded player who ranks high, J. H. Crawford, did not show the form which enabled him to win the championship two years ago, while leading L. Hecht, of Czechoslovakia, who is one of his country's first three, R. Menzel (seeded) being at the top, on Court 1. A long drawn out battle ended in Crawford's favour at 11-9, 6-4, 6-8, 6-2.

On the other hand, Van Ryn, Germany's protagonist (who is seeded No. 2 just in front of Crawford), gave an impressive display while

DESIGNS ON HOLDER'S CROWN

BY HEAVYWEIGHT BOXERS

OPPONENTS BEING SOUGHT

Berlin, July 16. Max Schmeling was undecided to-day whether to fight Joe Louis or Max Baer in New York in September, but intimated he was inclined to take on Baer because this match offers a chance at the world heavy-weight title both once held.

Madison Square Garden offered the Black Uhlans a match with Baer about September 25, the winner to be matched with Jimmy Braddock, who took Baer's crown a month ago, next June.

The offer to meet Louis, the Detroit "black menace," comes from Mike Jacobs, promoter of the Yankee stadium scrap last month, in which the Negro boy battered giant Primo Carnera. This scrap would be staged on September 18 at the Polo Grounds.

"Louis is out of the picture as far as the Garden is concerned," said the boxing director, James J. Johnston, in seeking the Baer-Schmeling bout. "He refused to fight for us last winter."—Associated Press.

ing, he cut loose with a vicious attack, and sent the Filipino crashing to the floor three times in the ninth round. The Brooklyn boy's riotous finish earned him victory. Both lads weighed 118 lbs.

NOTTS WIN ON FIRST INNINGS

LEADERS' ATTACK MASTERED

TEST PLAYERS IN FORM

London, July 23. Rain undoubtedly saved Yorkshire from their first defeat of the season when playing against Notts at Trent Bridge during the past three days. Play was curtailed on Saturday owing to the weather conditions when Yorkshire had made 110 runs for four wickets but they were well ahead when stumps were drawn to-day.

Continuing their innings which was interrupted by the weather on Saturday, the Yorkshire eleven yesterday scored 208 runs. Notts played havoc with the visitors' attack which was so completely mastered by Arthur Stables and Harris that 402 runs were on the board before the last wicket fell.

Stables contributed a score of 125 runs without losing his wicket, which Harris had made 77 when he was dismissed.

In their second innings Yorkshire had lost one wicket for 20 runs when stumps were drawn.

The match was a benefit to B. Lilly, the Notts wicket-keeper. Several of the players selected for next Saturday's fourth test match against the South Africans at Old Trafford, revealed brilliant form, the most outstanding feat being by J. C. Clay, the Glamorgan bowler, who captured 12 wickets against Hampshire for a total of 131 runs.

Clay was playing at Barnmouth when he took seven for 54 to dismiss Hampshire in their first innings for 156 runs. Glamorgan replied with a total of 187 to win the match on first innings.

In their second knock Hampshire were not sent back until they had made 241 runs, of which Hosié contributed 136. Clay had another five victims for 80 runs. Glamorgan had 212 for nine wickets at the close of play.

LANCASHIRE WIN

Lancashire scored an eight-wicket victory over Surrey at the Oval when the hosts scored 321 runs. E. R. T. Holmes, the captain, was in form with the bat and made 104 runs. When Surrey declared their second innings closed at 225 for six wickets, Holmes had 50 without losing his wicket.

Lancashire had made 307 runs in their first innings, Hopwood scoring 89, and they then made 240 for two wickets. Washbrook, was responsible for 20 of the runs.

An exciting finish was witnessed at Mad-town where Kent, thanks to Freeman, beat Middlesex by five runs.

The bats rattled up a score of 245 runs and then dismissed the opposition for 189. Freeman taking five wickets for 108. When the second innings total had reached 158 for eight Kent applied the closure and Middlesex replied with 215 runs. Freeman this time had six wickets for 118 runs.

ANOTHER CLOSE MATCH

Another close affair was the match at Northampton where Worcestershire beat the hosts by 30 runs, after only scoring 95 in their first innings. It was Perkins who did most of the damage, taking six for 54.

When Northants went to the wickets they ran up 171 runs, of which Cox made 74, while Warner captured six for 51, but Worcestershire took their second innings to 304 before their last wicket fell. Martin was the main contributor with 101 runs. Northants made a gallant attempt to score the runs but except for Baker, who scored 141, the batsmen were unequal to the occasion. The innings closed at 199.

P. R. Santall, the Warwickshire batsman, took his benefit in the match between his county and Sussex at Brimingham, where the visitors won by eight wickets.

Sussex scored 330 runs in the first innings in which John Parks made 156 and Hollies took seven for 118. Warwickshire replied with 177; John Parks following up his batting feat by taking five wickets for 40 runs.

In the follow-on Warwickshire made 212 and Sussex scored 62 for two wickets.

DERBYSHIRE ALSO WIN

Derbyshire scored another victory when playing at Burton-on-Trent against Gloucestershire, winning by ten wickets.

Gloucestershire put on 234 runs in their first innings when Hammond made 81 while Derbyshire replied with a score of 325, of which Alderman made 74. Copson, the Derbyshire fast bowler, took five for 31 when Gloucestershire went in again, and the Gloucestershire batsmen were separated.

In their match against Essex at Clifton, Somerset won by 150 runs. Somerset took first knock and scored 173 and 240 for five wickets declared while Essex made 163 and 110.

DUNCANS BEAT SILVAS

LOSERS FAIL TO STRIKE TRUE FORM

CONTEST CONCEDED ON SECOND LAST HEAD

(By "Saxen")

Catching their opponents on an off-day, L. A. R. Duncan and R. Duncan, yesterday, qualified for the final of the Open Lawn Bowls Pairs Championship by a margin of 22 shots to 14 scored on 20 heads, their opponents, F. X. M. da Silva and C. G. Silva, conceding the match at this stage after a heavy downpour had fallen whilst the last head of the day was being played.

The elimination of the Silvas, who were favoured in many quarters to win the title, was not due entirely to their complete lack of form as the Duncans were playing a class of bowls that was always of a fairly high standard, with both father and son bringing off some brilliant shots at various stages of the match.

The younger Duncan was drawing some beautiful words and on many of the heads was by far the better of the two leads. He was able to give his father valuable support and took every advantage of his opponent's poor form. There was a period when F. X. M. da Silva played extremely bad bowls and during the course of eleven heads at an early stage of the game the Duncans chalked up fourteen shots against the Silvas' five.

DUNCAN SENIOR SHINES

The elder Duncan was dealing with both his drawing and his driving and it was invariably his last word which saved the day for the pair whenever they found themselves in difficulties. There were times when he was faced with a heavy score but a drive gave them the count or saved them several shots. It was largely due to the brilliant form revealed by the father that the pair were able to qualify for the last match of the tournament.

C. G. Silva, like his cousin, rarely or never touched top form and although he brought off some clever shots he was out-played by his opponent. On one head, when the Duncans registered a count of five at a critical stage of the game, Duncan senior drew three shots in succession whereas C. G. Silva was unable even to get anywhere near the jack to save a heavy, and what ultimately proved a fatal, count.

DUNCANS TAKE LEAD

A two on the first head and a single on the second gave the Silvas a lead at the start but the Duncans immediately caught up with a three on the third. The younger Duncan lay three shots against F. X. M. da Silva and the father drew a fourth, but C. G. Silva knocked out one to concede three.

The Silvas had one on the next head but the Duncans claimed two singles to take the lead again but they gave away a two for the Silvas to lead 6-5 at the end of the seventh head. On the eighth head the Silvas were lying one shot when Duncan senior, with one of his characteristic drives carried the bowler and registered a count of three (Continued on Page 9.)

BOWLS MATCHES TO-DAY

Semi-Final Of Pairs Championship

Weather permitting the last but one match of the Open Pairs Lawn Bowls Championship will be played this evening when opponents will be found for the Duncans, who yesterday defeated the Silvas in the first of the semi-final matches.

To-day the second semi-final tie will be played on the Kowloon Bowling Green where the Craigengower pair, M. J. Medina and J. Cavanagh, will meet the Civil Service-Police combination, S. Ecclestone and E. Shepherd.

In reaching the semi-final stage, Medina and Cavanagh eliminated E. G. Post and W. E. Hollands by 23-14; A. O. Brown and B. E. Maughan 20-14; A. Macfarlane and J. Russell 21-13 and F. J. Jones and A. W. Grimmit 15-14, while Ecclestone and Shepherd beat Dr. N. P. Karanjia and Dr. P. S. Fernando 26-15; J. T. Tetley and D. W. Waterson 20-15; J. S. Landolt and A. E. Condes 25-9 and T. Armstrong and C. Strang 28-14.

Two interesting singles matches are also down for this afternoon when three former champions will be seen in action.

PLAYER STRUCK BY BALL

BRUCE MITCHELL INJURED

When the South Africans beat Staffordshire by an innings and 42 runs at Stoke recently the ball reared unexpectedly, and after an accident to Bruce Mitchell, the South African captain refrained from using his race bowlers. Mitchell had to have stitches put in a wound over his right eye, caused by a ball deflected by the wicket-keeper's glove. The blow rendered Mitchell unconscious for ten minutes.

CHAPTER XXIX

Sally said furiously, "I don't understand it. I simply don't get it at all." She glared at the inoffensive tips and at Clarence, stooped and graying, in the background.

"You say he said he was going to the city?" Sally demanded.

Clarence nodded. They had been over the ground several times before, but if the young lady wanted to ask the same questions over and over he had no choice but to answer them.

"He say he goin' to the city," Clarence elaborated, with a side-long roll of chocolate eyes in a dark face. "He say so me to look up."

"And that was day before yesterday?"

"Yes'm. In the evenin'. We ain't heard nothing from him since."

Sally waved an afternoon newspaper in his eyes. "Have you seen that?"

"No'm. Ain't seen nothing." Clarence's eyes executed a sudden roll of apprehension. "They ain't nothin' in it 'bout Miss Michael, is they?"

Sally laughed—an unpleasant laugh, drawing back the corners of her lips from small predatory teeth.

"Read it."

Tips bent over. "Pa can't read," he said. "Lissen he has a magnifying glass. His eyes is bad."

"What do it say?" Clarence wanted to know.

Tips bent over the newspaper, reading slowly. "It says how Mister Michael is a lord or something," he said slowly. "It says how his daddy was a son of a lord in England or Ireland—and now Mister Michael, seems he come into the business."

"Exactly," Sally Moon, with a sound that was more like a snort than the sarcastic laugh she had intended, slipped down into the shabby porch chair. Over her linked, gloved hands she regarded the two shabby men.

"I believe you two know more about this than you pretend to," she said on a note of angry suspicion. "I believe you perfectly well know where Michael is."

"No'm. Clarence shook his head. "Well, I'm going to find out. You said you know where he is. One of them could stop her she had flung herself inside the door of Michael's house. I'm going to search his papers," he said. "And don't either of you interfere!"

She was inside the room which had served Michael as a bedroom before either one could say a word. Tips looked at his father, and the older man looked back apprehensively.

"She ain't got a bit of business in there," the boy said humbly.

"How we going to stop her?" Clarence wanted to know.

Sally went through bureau drawers like a whirlwind. The neat, plain, bare chamber did not afford many hiding places. A bed, tidily made up with a mended white spread, a common oak chest of drawers, a wardrobe with one of the old-fashioned doors swinging wide—she went through them all.

There was little enough. There was pitifully little. A handful of old letters with the postmark of a little town in a western state. A thick, clumsy old gold watch. A button box.

Sally rifled through the letters. The stable boy came to the door to stare at her.

"You go away, Tips," she said crossly. "Don't you bother me. This is my business."

"Ain't nobody got any right buttin' into Mister Michael's private things," he said stubbornly. But he dared not interfere. After all, she was the girl his employer had been engaged to marry.

Clarence had shuffled out into the kitchen. You could hear him rattling pots and pans and setting down no cups with angry gusto. Sally said no attention to all this. She had come with a determination to go through Michael's belongings, to see if she could find any clue to his disappearance. She flounced into the living room after a busy five minutes, a small bundle in her hand.

Tips watched her go, open-mouthed. His father came out of the kitchen hesitating. "That her car goin' away?"

"That's it," Tips sniffed, going into Michael's room and picking up a cushion Sally had dropped in her haste. "She sure made a mess of this here place. She sure is a big-talking young lady, Miss Moon."

"Here!" Clarence uttered contemptuously. "Ain't no Moons even goin' to come high-tonin' me. I know 'em."

"She taken away a lot of stuff of 'Mist' Michael's," Tips offered hesitatingly. "Letters and such."

Clarence grinned, an old man's wide, sly grin. His lips were stretched inconspicuously wide. "She did, huh?"

"Yes, suh!" The stable boy was emphatic. "Look like Mist Michael run away from here while the running was good. What you think about it?"

His father lifted his shoulders in an eloquent shrug. "Boy, I ain't mindin' nobody's business."

"You think we better stay on a while?" Tips said.

"Where'd we go, anyways?" Clarence demanded. "You talk crazy, nonny-boy. Course we're stayin'. And, case that girl comes back here lookin' some more, we goin' to lock up this place."

He turned the key in the lock and went back to his leisurely puttering among the kettles. Tips wandered out into the stableyard, fed the horses and idly swept up some scattered hay. In the kitchen, behind the red checked curtains, an old man took out an official-looking paper and chuckled over it.

"Here's somethin' than big-talkin' young lady 'ain't got to find," Clarence said to himself. "Cause I got it first. An' it's Mist' Michael's private business."

It was the marriage certificate of Michael Heatheros and Katharine Strykhurst.

Sally rushed to her room and opened the letters she had found in Michael's bureau. They were not very interesting letters. There were several notes from the bank about the mortgage. There was a bill of sale for a mare. There were one or two brief and badly written, personal letters from a man in Montana—a man who signed himself quite simply "Bill."

Nothing incriminating, nothing to point the way Michael had gone. Sally stood staring at the letters in bafflement and anger. Her temperament demanded that she expend energy on someone. So she dressed herself in plain dark silk and boarded a train for the city. The clipping about Michael's inheritance lay in the smart dark blue handbag.

She went straight to Mr. Downrigg's hotel and that gentleman came down to the foyer to meet her. He was a lean elderly Englishman with a stoop and a courteous, tired voice. No, he hadn't had any communication from Mr. Heatheros as yet. And that was odd because Messrs. Malley & Gerhardt had assured him Michael was easily to be found. All his telephone calls on the day before had been fruitless. Mr. Heatheros, the servants said, was away and it was not known when he would return.

"Something's happened then," Sally announced firmly. "Somethin' happened to Michael the night he came into New York." She saw it all now. She had been stupid to be so frightened and angry. Of course Michael had been hurt. He had no reason on earth to run away on the eve of this triumph.

Her manner softened perceptibly. She had met Mr. Downrigg with an air of challenge, thinking he knew something about the absent Michael, thinking, perhaps, he had aided and abetted him in his escape.

"You must help me," she said, her voice falling on his cooling note. "We must search the hospital—the morgues—"

"My dear young woman!" shuddered Mr. Downrigg. "Surely you don't think—"

She was firm, but to show him how deeply she was affected by the thought of Michael injured or dead she wept a little, quite prettily and convincingly.

"We must," she said. "We dare not do otherwise. After all," she reminded him with a liquid glance of those dark, opaque eyes, "I'm his promised wife, you know."

She could see herself telling the story to newspaper reporters. Dead or alive, Michael should not escape her.

CINEMA NEWS

NOTES FROM THE THEATRES

"The Mystery of Edwin Drood," the most mystifying of mystery stories, has been booked for showing at the King's Theatre on Friday. Claude Rains, the famous "Fishy" Man" has the leading role; that of a sinister choir master. Those who have seen this film declare it to be a picture that has you sitting on the very edge of your chair from the opening scene to the dramatic and spectacular ending when the mystery is solved. Four of Hollywood's best-known writers, Leopold Atlas, Bradley King, John Balderston and Gladys Unger, did the screen-play, and one of the most successful directors in pictures, Stuart Walker, directed. The film has been produced on a grand and spectacular scale with some of the largest sets that have ever been constructed for a picture. Supporting Claude Rains is a cast of film notables such as rarely seen in one picture. Among them are Douglas Montgomery, Heather Angel, David Manners, Valerie Hobson, Francis L. Sullivan, E. E. Clive, Forrester Harvey and Walter Kingsford.

"Carnival"

Three honest-to-goodness troupers head the cast of "Carnival," the Columbia production, opening tomorrow at the Queen's Theatre. They are Leo Tracy, fast-talking star of more than twenty pictures, Sally Eilers and Jimmy Durante, famous professor of the schmozzola. Tracy trained years in small stock companies before he ever set foot upon a Broadway stage. He played vaudeville, hoofed it and speaking in the category of the professionals, "he knows the ropes." His first big role came in "Broadway" on the New York stage. Later a motion picture studio bought the production and Tracy was signed to play the same part he enacted on the stage. Sally Eilers, beautiful blonde actress, first began in pictures with the "Goodbye Kiss." After several years of hard work, Jimmy Durante decided he wanted to go on the stage. He started singing songs of his own, improving in robustness on the New York stage. He played in the Bowery and Coney Island. Later he migrated to Brooklyn beer halls with a church charity or lodge benefit sandwiched in. He met Lou Clayton and Eddie Jackson, making the noted trio of Clayton, Jackson and Durante, was vaudeville that brought stardom for the team. They were featured in "Show Girl" and "New Yorkers" as well as other revues. Durante made his motion picture debut in "Roughhouse Nights" with Helen Morgan and Charles Ruggles. "Carnival" is the story of a puppeteer, played by Tracy, who tries to bring up his son without a mother. This human story was written by Robert Riskin, the author of those famous hits, "Lady for a Day," "It Happened One Night" and "Broadway Bill." Walter Lang directed.

"The Woman in Red"

Barbara Stanwyck has the most dynamic role of her career in her new First National production, "The Woman in Red," which is showing for its first time to-day at the Alhambra Theatre. This talented star has an unusually strong vehicle in "The Woman in Red," and makes the most of every scene. The picture, based on the popular novel, "Moon Shore," by Wallace Irwin, is filled with thrills and intense dramatic action set in the luxurious atmosphere of Long Island country estates. Miss Stanwyck appears in the character of a Kentucky girl thoroughly versed in horse lore who, when the family fortunes are reversed, becomes a professional rider for a wealthy New York society woman. Through skill as a rider she brings one blue ribbon for another to the owner, whose gratitude turns to hate when she wins the man they both love. Miss Stanwyck is charming in the lighter moments and the romantic situations, but she rises to new heights of emotional acting in the intense dramatic sequences, especially in a sensational court trial in the smashing climax, in which she is willing to sacrifice love and honour to save a man. The picture is a big one, and it is well to be innocent from conviction on a murder charge. Gene Raymond, in the role of an impoverished young aristocrat who sweeps the Kentucky girl off her feet in a whirlwind courtship, proves himself a romantic lover, as well as an accomplished horseman. Genevieve Tobin, always the finished actress, gives an unusually fine portrayal of the wealthy woman who employs Miss Stanwyck, and does everything to break up her love match after she herself has lost out. She brings out the vixenish characteristics of the woman of polished surface with great finesse. There is an exceptionally large and talented supporting cast, those deserving special mention for their strong characterizations including Philip Reed, Dorothy Tree, Russell Hicks, Nella Walker, Claude Gillingwater, Doris Lloyd, Hale Hamilton and Arthur Treacher.

"Vagabond Lady"

To his dignified father and brother, Tony Spear was an embarrassing responsibility. To Josephine Spiggins, the brother's fiancée he was a delightful companion. This is the gist of the riotously funny plot of "Vagabond Lady," the Hal Roach-M-G-M production, terminating its local engagement to-day at the Queen's Theatre. The older Spear is the millionaire owner of a department store, whose motto is "Dignity—Always." Josephine's father, an irresponsible character, is Head Janitor of the store and a former college mate of his boss. John in planning his marriage to Josephine, has stressed the importance of dignity, culture and poise. But when Tony, his brother, arrives on the scene, after a round-the-world cruise in an ancient sailing vessel, he tells "Jo" that "tomorrow" is a long way off so "to-day" should be enjoyed to the fullest. The result of the two conflicting philosophies is humorous—and at times dramatic. At any rate, it results in complications. Further when "Jo" and Tony discover that they love each other, things take a rapid turn. There are grief results when some boisterous companions and named Gary, upset the appointment and put Tony in a bad light with "Jo." The situation is finally straightened out when "Jo's" habit of chewing gum upsets the wedding ceremony. Driving John frantic, Tony finds it easy to talk John out of the marriage idea and then proceeds to annex "Jo" for himself. Featured in the production are Robert Young, Evelyn Venable, Ike Arnold Denny, while the supporting cast includes such players as Bertone Churchill as Mr. Spear, Frank Craven as Mr. Spiggins and others of note. Mr. Young as the irresponsible "Tony" makes himself delightful. Miss Venable makes the beautiful and likeable "Jo" while Denny does the exceptionally fine work as the dignified "John."

"Woman in the Dark"

The question of whether a man and woman who have incurred society's disfavor have a right to each other's love is daringly answered in Dashiell Hammett's latest picture, "Woman in the Dark," showing at the King's Theatre to-day. In unfolding his plot, the author of "The Thin Man" has probed to the quick the emotions of his principal characters. John Bradley, on parole after serving a prison sentence for manslaughter, and Louise Loring, a woman trying to end an unpleasant affair, are caught in a maelstrom of events which they have no power to control. Handicapped from the start, they are relentlessly persecuted for the very things that they are trying to live down. Ralph Bellamy is cast in the understanding and capable role of Bradley, and Fay Wray is the beautiful and moving Louise. The "Woman in the Dark," Melvyn Douglas, suave leading man of the recent Broadway hit, "No More Ladies," portrays Robson the man about town with whom Louise wishes to break off. Roscoe Ates, has the role of Tommy Locke, Bradley's comic pickpocket pal. Ruth Gilllette, Granville Bates and Neil O'Day are also in the cast.

"Wings in the Dark"

RABIES VICTIM

INOCULATION FAILED TO PREVENT DEATH

It is learned the death of Cheung Yau, 18-year-old stone-breaker, of Ma Tau Kok, from hydrophobia following anti-rabies treatment, is the first of the kind in the history of Hongkong. Cheung died in Kowloon Hospital on Monday.

In an interview with Dr. G. W. Pope, Medical Officer of Health, the representative was informed that as far as was known deceased was treated immediately following the bite on June 16.

Two other Chinese who were bitten at the time received full treatment. They had shown no signs of the disease, and were in fact, pronounced free.

Whether deceased was bitten first and had an unusually large amount of the virus in his system, in which case the normal treatment had not been sufficient, was not known.

There was a suspicion said Dr. Pope, that he had only taken twelve of the required fourteen inoculations.

In answer to our representative, Dr. Pope stated that it was not possible to compel any individual to undergo the full treatment. It was entirely up to the person concerned.

It was also not legal to detain such a person. That course could only be taken in the case of a notifiable disease.

Rabies Treatment

The Pasteur treatment for rabies, a modified form of which is used in the Colony, was first applied to human beings in 1885 after prolonged investigation and experimental trial on animals. It is based on the fact that a virus, capable of giving rabies by inoculation, can be extracted from the tissues of a rabid animal and then intensified or attenuated at pleasure. For instance, the natural virus of dogs is always of the same strength, but where inoculated into monkeys it becomes weakened, and the process of attenuation can be carried on by passing the virus through a succession of monkeys, until it loses the power of causing death. If this weakened virus is then passed back through guinea-pigs, dogs or rabbits, it regains its former strength. Again, if it be passed through a succession of dogs it becomes intensified up to a maximum of strength, which is called the virus fixe. If the spinal cord of a rabid dog be preserved in a dry state, the virus loses strength day by day.

The system of treatment consists in making an emulsion of the spinal cord and graduating the strength of the dose by using a succession of cords, which have been kept for a progressively diminishing length of time. The principle is the artificial acquisition by the patient of resistance to the rabic virus, which is presumed to be already in the system but is not active, by accustoming him gradually to its toxic effect, beginning with a weak form and progressively increasing the dose.

Interviewed yesterday a well-known Hongkong practitioner stated that the death of Cheung Yau was the first case he had ever heard of in which the Pasteur Treatment had failed, when administered in time.

"Although fourteen inoculations are required to complete the treatment, twelve ordinarily would suffice to accustom a patient to the toxic effect of hydrophobia," he said.

WONDERS OF PAPUA

ENORMOUS VALLEY LIKE H. G. WELLS STORY

Canberra, July 23. The wonders of northern Papua were vividly described by the Resident Magistrate, Mr. J. G. Hides, who has just arrived at Port Moresby after eight months of exploration of totally unknown lands, accompanied by Patrol Officer James O'Malley and nine native policemen.

The party travelled up the Fly, Strickland and Carrington Rivers and penetrated an enormous valley richly watered, intensively cultivated, and inhabited by thousands of natives of light brown skins, short stature and huge mops of hair, adorned with daisies.

Mr. Hides dubs it Papua's wonderland. The natives who were most friendly, cultivate the soil with wooden spades and declined gifts of steel implements.

The explorers then crossed a high fertile plateau surrounded by towering limestone walls and resembling the valley in Mr. H. G. Wells' story of the Kingdom of the Blind.

Dour Cannibals

The next stage was among cannibals, a tall strong and formidable race, armed with stone battle-axes and daggers made from human thigh-bones, and wearing wigs like Gossack hats, and boars' tusks stuck into their noses.

They are, however, excellent farmers and cultivate potatoes and other vegetables, with which they season human joints, also bananas, ginger and tobacco.

They were very hostile in their attitude, and refused to let the explorers have any food who, in consequence, arrived back in Port Moresby exhausted and half starved.—Reuter.

AEROPLANES MISHAP

PILOTS AND PASSENGERS NARROW ESCAPE

Canton, July 23. Two aeroplane incidents occurred yesterday resulting in one plane diving into the river off Linhuashan, near Whampoa; and the other crashing in a field at Shahe.

All airmen and passengers involved escaped injury. The planes were damaged.

Two monoplanes were sent practising up the river yesterday, when one of them, which was piloted by Mr. Mah, failed to return after considerable time. Later it was learned that his plane had dropped into the river near Whampoa, owing to engine trouble. He swam ashore with only slight injuries.

Simultaneously another report came to say that another plane made a forced landing on the Shahe aerodrome. Three passengers escaped without injury.—Wah Kiu Yat Po.

Factory Near Completion

Canton, July 23. Arrangements for the opening of the new aeroplane factory at Shikwan have been nearly completed.

A big consignment of fittings was transported to Shikwan this morning. The machinery has been completely installed.

It is understood that General Chan Chai-long is leaving for Shikwan in a few days to inspect the factory as well as the new arsenal at Palkong. He will be accompanied by Mr. Mei Lung-an and foreign military experts.—Wah Kiu Yat Po.

SCHOOL ALARMED

JAPANESE GUNBOAT FIRE ON TUNGTING LAKE

Shanghai, July 23. The American Consul-General at Hankow reports that while a Japanese gunboat was practising on Tungting Lake, in northern Hunan, it dropped several machine-gun bullets on the compound of the Reform Church Mission School at Yehow on the Yangtze near Hupeh, but caused no damage.

The Japanese Consul at Hankow is investigating the matter.—United Press.

Japanese Report

Shanghai, July 22. Marshal Chiang Kai-shek, Chairman of the National Military Council, intends to resign his civil posts shortly to assume full command of the anti-Communist campaign in Central China, according to Japanese reports. It is believed in these circles that the Generalissimo's reported intention to relinquish his civilian offices may have possibly been influenced by the recent Sino-Japanese situation.

Leaders Impeached

A demand for the impeachment of a group of Government leaders as a result of their negotiations with Japan in the recent North China issues, is in the hands of the Control Yuan and is being studied by that body. It was learned to-day. Included in the group are General Huang Fu, former chairman of the Peiping Political Council; Mr. Tang Yu-jen, administrative Vice-Minister of Foreign Affairs; Mr. Yin Tung, Director of the Peiping-Mukden Railway and Mr. Li Tse-yi, the private secretary of General Huang Fu.

Demand for action against the officials, on the charge that they had infringed upon the sovereignty of the Chinese Republic in the negotiations they recently conducted with the Japanese regarding Hopei and Charhar provinces, was made by several members of the Control Yuan, which ordered that an investigation be made.

WORLD SHIPPING

LLOYD'S FIGURES FOR JUNE 1935

London, July 23. The world's shipping tonnage is still shrinking. Lloyd's register book for June 1935 shows that whereas between June 1933 and June 1934 there was a net decrease of 2,343,573 tons in the world total, during the past twelve months world steam tonnage has decreased by 1,330,640 tons.

Motor tonnage has increased by 700,165 tons, and sailing and other craft have decreased by 60,165 tons making a further net decrease of 630,475 tons.

The only countries showing notable increases last year were Greece, 203,905 tons, Russia, 171,522 tons, China 66,546 tons.

The largest decreases were: Great Britain, 334,503 tons; France 272,917 tons.

The world tonnage in June 1935 was 64,885,972 compared with 65,576,612 last year. Nearly 1,760,000 tons were broken up.

Less than two per cent. of the world tonnage is represented by sailing ships and non-propelled barges.—Reuter.

NOTED POLITICIAN

MR. ROLAND GREEN ON VISIT TO COLONY

On his second visit to Hongkong in less than two years, the Hon. Mr. Roland Green, Member of the Commonwealth House of Representatives at Canberra, arrived from Australia by the Burns Philp liner Neptune yesterday.

Mr. Green is accompanied by his wife, and is combining politics with pleasure on his trip. One of the strongest supporters of the Government, Mr. Green has represented the United Australia Party in the Federal House for many years.

He served with the Australian Expeditionary Forces at Gallipoli and in France during the Great War and lost his right leg on the Western Front.

Mr. and Mrs. Green are returning to Australia by the Neptune. "Parliament meets on September 2 and I must be back by then," Mr. Green said.

Australia is quiet politically, he added. Labour has been returned to power in Queensland, and the Nationalists in New South Wales, with such substantial majorities that politics have lost their firework in those two States for the next three years.

"Canberra is running smoothly, and Australia is slowly but surely pulling out of the depression."

GERMAN DEBT

STARTLING CHARGES IN ANTI-NAZI PAPER

Berlin, July 23. An article published in the weekly paper Der Deutsche Volksgeist, and believed to have been inspired by Herr Schacht, disclosed the existence of a huge German public debt, not included in the official statistics, and urged a drastic economy programme.

The article stated that the public debt had increased by £100 million marks between March 31 and June 30. It declared that short term indebtedness totals eight billion marks, raising the total debt to approximately 18 billions of marks, instead of the officially admitted 12,400 million marks officially admitted.—United Press.

BRITISH THREAT ALARMS FRANCE

WOULD QUIT LEAGUE IF WAR ALLOWED

PARIS NOW SUPPORTING LONDON VIEWS

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1891. Received, July 24, 1 p.m.)

Paris, July 24.

It is reported authoritatively here that Britain's threat to quit the League of Nations unless other League members attempted to prevent Italy going to war with Abyssinia caused a quick change of attitude in Paris official circles. It is understood that this threat changed the French stand entirely, and that France, hitherto inclined to allow Signor Mussolini a free hand in Ethiopia, now supports the British contention that the League cannot tolerate a war and that a full airing of the whole dispute before the League Council is essential, the United Press reports.

Great Britain, Reuter states, will press for the fullest ventilation of the whole of the Italo-Abyssinian dispute before the League Council. Her attitude has been clarified.

Meanwhile, there is strong agitation against Japan in Italy, and charges and counter-charges are being flung around the world by Rome and Tokyo.

London, July 23.

Britain will press for full discussion of all the aspects of the Italo-Abyssinian dispute when the League of Nations Council considers the matter next week, says Reuter's diplomatic correspondent.

Hope of a peaceful settlement before the League Council meeting becomes increasingly remote. Only such a settlement would alter Britain's determination to insist upon the sifting of the whole quarrel.

It is confidently expected that as a result of the recent conversations between M. Laval, the French Prime Minister, and Sir George Clerk, the British Ambassador to Paris, the British demand for a full discussion will receive France's support.

During the attempts made by Britain and France in Rome to find a basis for a discussion of plans for a settlement of the Italo-Abyssinian dispute, it was gathered that Italy had not departed from her stand that nothing short of annexation or at very least political control of part or all of Abyssinia would satisfy Signor Mussolini.

The possibility of holding three-power conversations between Britain, France and Italy, as signatories of the 1906 treaty, was discussed; but in any case, it was decided, it would be difficult to hold such a meeting without an Italian undertaking that she will not resort to force.

MUST STATE CASE

The British Ambassador at Rome, Sir Eric Drummond, has been urging upon Italy the necessity of stating her case against Abyssinia freely at Geneva, but so far Italy appears reluctant. If Italy continues reluctant, and that seems probable, the vital part of the Geneva proceedings is likely to come under the scope of Article XII of the Covenant, under which League members agreed in the event of a dispute likely to lead to a rupture either to arbitration for a judicial settlement or an inquiry by the League Council, and in no case that they should resort to war until three months after the award by one or other of these investigations.—Reuter Special.

AGREEMENT REACHED

London, July 23. As a result of exchanges which have taken place it is now authoritatively stated that close agreement exists between the French and British Governments in regard to efforts they are making to obtain a peaceful solution of the Italo-Abyssinian dispute. It is widely hoped that at the League Council meeting which is to be held next week, thorough ventilation of the issues involved will (Continued on Page 7.)

OUTBURST AGAINST JAPANESE

ITALY INCENSED AT ATTITUDE

EMBASSY GUARDED

Rome, July 23.

A strong police guard has been placed outside the Japanese Embassy here. Feeling against the Japanese is extremely strong.

A virulent anti-Japanese press campaign has been developed by Popolo d'Italia, which says that Japan's new attitude violently conflicts with the Japanese Ambassador's recent assurance that Tokyo had no political interest in Abyssinia.

"Japan's sudden sympathy for poor Abyssinia reveals Japan's aim to be unlimited political and economic expansion in Africa," declares this newspaper, "as a new basis for her campaign against Europe."

Reports of anti-Japanese demonstrations in several towns have brought a semi-official denial which says that the public exuberance is due to Signor Mussolini's latest pronouncement.

The anti-Japanese campaign has not obliterated the anti-British attacks which have been pressed for several weeks.

Gayda, in an article in the Giornale d'Italia, cites the British Government's decision not to place an embargo on arms to either Italy or Abyssinia as proof of the Anglo-Abyssinian solidarity.—Reuter.

FIERCER CRITICISM

Rome, July 23. Anti-Japanese feeling here is very hot and overshadows even the news of the suspension of the gold coverage law in the public mind.

In Popolo d'Italia, Signor Mussolini's organ, it is significantly charged that Japan is championing Ethiopia against Italy.

The paper accuses Japan of defying the Kellogg Pact and attempting to break up the Anglo-Franco-Italian front for the consolidation of European peace.

"Japan, in an insane, imperialistic dream, eventually aims at substituting herself for the white people in Africa," says the paper.—United Press.

Murderer "Guilty But Insane"

STRANGE STORY OF DELUSIONS

SESSIONS TRIAL CONCLUDES

The trial of Tse Tam, poultry-keeper, for the murder of Chan Hang-tak, fisherman, at Tong Fuk village, Lan Tau Island, in the early hours of June 11, was concluded at the Criminal Sessions this morning when the jury returned a verdict of "Guilty but insane."

Accused was ordered to be detained during His Majesty's pleasure.

Mr. J. A. Fraser, assistant Attorney-General, appeared for the Crown, and the accused was defended by Mr. Lo Tung-fan, instructed by Mr. H. A. de B. Botelho.

The jury empanelled comprised Messrs. T. J. J. Fenwick (foreman), G. J. C. Sommer, Tung Lim-cho, W. E. Hunt, B. Soltan, U Tak-choe, and A. E. Gutierrez.

The case for the Crown having been concluded the previous day, this morning's proceedings were devoted to the case for the defence.

BEST OF FRIENDS

Accused, who had been described by two doctors to be of low intellect and a sufferer from delusions, giving evidence from the witness-box stated that he was a native of Ping Hai district and came to the Tong Fuk village about three years ago. He had known deceased for several years and up to the time of the killing, they were the best of friends.

On the morning of June 7, three days before the crime, he felt something like smoke and fire which, he stated, was let out by the villagers. He became stupefied, and was of the belief that some of the villagers wanted to murder him. He encountered the same experience on the following two days, and told the deceased about it. Deceased then advised him to move over to his place on the following night, June 10. He and deceased went to the latter's hut just before dark on that night. Deceased told him to go to bed, but just as he was lying down, he saw deceased holding an oil lamp walking up and down the hut. Later, deceased suggested putting out the light, but witness asked him not to do so, as he was feeling numb all over his body. During this time deceased had not yet gone to bed, and witness then arose, and, taking his revolver with him, squatted on the ground.

MYSTERIOUS ATTACKS.

Later, witness felt he was being attacked right and left, but he could not say what the attack actually was. He then covered himself up with the coverlet. Deceased noticed this movement and asked him to go to sleep. He told him he could not and that he was going to die that night. The reason why he thought so was that he felt he was being attacked mysteriously. He felt smoke and fire around him, and saw deceased was unaffected although he was sitting quite near to him. He later told deceased: "We have been friends for such a long time. Do you know that I am suffering so bad, and I am sure you know what these people (villagers) wanted to do to me. Why don't you go and ask for mercy?" Deceased replied: "Yes, we have been good friends, but I don't know what these people are doing. You better get out of this place to."

paign, the Tokyo Asahi Shimbun spiritedly declares that the Italian press is deliberately trying to antagonise Japanese public opinion.

Italy is indulging in a clear and systematic plot to develop the Italo-Ethiopian dispute into a general conflict between the coloured and white races, and in this way is endeavouring to force Britain and France to protect the Italian policy.

Japan, says the Asahi, is taking precautions. She will not play her hand until after Italy has made her intention clear. For the moment Japan is content to watch developments calmly, but with the utmost caution.—Reuter.

"WE ARE DECENT PEOPLE"

(Special to "Telegraph")
(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1891. Received, July 24, 5.30 a.m.)

Berlin, July 23. Herr Goeting, Reich Minister of Air, has dissolved the Reich League of Catholic Front Fighters, which is a Catholic ex-Servicemen's organisation, on the ground that it is liable to carry religious differences into the ranks of German ex-Servicemen.

Julius Streicher, who is the centre of the anti-Jewish storm, fore-shadows laws segregating Jews throughout the country. In an interview with the Angrief, Streicher explained that segregation had already been virtually effected at Nuremberg, where the Jews have their own swimming bath, cafe, institute and special schools.

"All these have been established in the interests of the Jews themselves, because we are a decent people," added Streicher.—Reuter Special.

ALHAMBRA THEATRE CLOSING

By reason, it is believed, of unfavourable circumstances which have arisen, the Alhambra Theatre, Kowloon, is being closed as from to-day. The performances advertised for to-day will not therefore take place.

Mr. C. S. Rosset, Secretary of Hongkong Amusements, Ltd., owners of the Alhambra Theatre, confirmed the closing down of the theatre on being approached this afternoon.

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1891. Received, July 24, 1 p.m.)

Buenos Ayres, July 23. Senator-elect Bordabehere was killed, the Minister of Agriculture, Senor Duma, and the Deputy, Senor Manchini, were wounded in a shooting affair in the Senate Chamber to-day.

The shooting followed a bout of fist-fights on the floor of the House between Senator De la Torre and Senor Pindo, the Minister of Finance.

The victims were all peace-makers, attempting to stop the struggle between the Minister and his antagonist.

Police have arrested Carlos Valdez Cora who was found to be carrying a revolver with four empty chambers.—United Press.

Strike Broken By Troopers

PICKETS ROUTED BY GAS ATTACKS

Terre Haute, Ind., July 24. The general strike here, involving some thousands of workers and necessitating the calling out of National Guardsmen, has been called off.

The strike pickets were broken up by the troopers who charged them with batons and tear gas bombs and inflicted a number of casualties.

Order is rapidly being restored. The Terre Haute area is still under martial law, however.—Reuter.

YANGTZE WHIPPED UP BY WIND

Hankow, July 23. A strong south wind stirred the waters in the Yangtze River here at about 7 o'clock this morning. The waves beat upon the dykes and caused some alarm, but both the Wuwei Dyke and the Changkung Dyke are reported to be holding out.

According to a bulletin issued by the Hankow Customs House, the water level is 48ft. 6ins.—Central News.

Peiping, July 23. The Yungting River has returned to its normal water level to-day dropping to 9ft.

The authorities are taking precautionary measures to protect the dykes along the river, in the event of another rise.—Central News.

SHAI EXCHANGE MARKET

MARKET DULL ALL MORNING

Shanghai, July 23. Exchange rates at 9.15 a.m. were: U.S. 39, Sterling 1/6.7/8, Gold Bars $853.20.

The foreign exchange market was steady with very little activity. Traders are closely watching the drop in the guilder as it is one of the few remaining gold currencies.

The market was extremely dull here at 10.35 a.m. There is virtually no business, passing. Exchange rates are unchanged.

The market has been extremely dull throughout the morning session. Closing rates were: U.S. dollars 38.15/16, Sterling 1/6.7/8, Gold Bars $855.90.—United Press.

GUILDER'S FATE UNCERTAIN

HOLLAND MAY QUIT GOLD STANDARD

COLIJN'S GOVERNMENT FACING DEFEAT

The Hague, July 23.

It is generally believed that the devaluation of the guilder is inevitable because the majority of the Second Chamber favours this step.

It is learned in Parliamentary circles that Dr. H. Colijn, the Prime Minister, will advise the Queen to call on the Catholic leader, Dr. Salverse, to form a new Government. But it is expected there will be difficulties in his way as it is unlikely that the powerful Social-Democrats will co-operate with the Catholics.

The public galleries of the Lower Chamber were crowded in expectation of a vote which would be critical for the Government, and possibly for Holland's currency, to-night. At the outset, Dr. Westerman said that if the Government did not devalue its currency it would have to take effective measures to protect it. Severe control of foreign exchanges was essential to parry any new attack on the guilder, he declared. A divergence of views was indicated by subsequent speakers.

SUPPORTS SILVER POLICY

PITTMAN HAS FAITH IN TREASURY

WON'T PRESS FOR ACTION

New York, July 23.

Increased activity in the Montreal silver market is attributed to the remarks of Senator Key Pittman, Nevada's silver champion, who has stated that he is satisfied that the Treasury is carrying out its silver purchase programme successfully and in the spirit in which it was intended that it should.

At the same time, he asserts that it is inevitable that the price of silver will eventually reach $1.25 per ounce.

Commenting on the present situation, Senator Pittman declared that he was in favour of a steady and orderly price rise. "Only recently," he recalled, "the Treasury broke the bear raid and taught the silver bears throughout the world a lesson they will remember."

Sensor Pittman declared against the repeal of the fifty per cent. tax on silver trading, stating it was adopted as a compromise between President Roosevelt and the Silver Bloc, and that any move for its repeal without the Administration's consent would be a breach of that compromise which had resulted in the mandatory silver purchase legislation.

For the same reason, Senator Pittman had not signed the petition demanding more aggressive silver action, and the success of this petition without Senator Pittman's support is considered very doubtful.—Reuter.

DUTCH AVIATION LOSSES

TWO SERVICES BEING DISCONTINUED

London, July 23. As a sequel to the recent series of losses in personnel and material, the Royal Dutch Air Line has decided to discontinue the North cover service, and to order the services between London and Amsterdam.—Reuter Special.

The state of the Government became very doubtful when Dr. Salverse, the Catholic leader, announced to the Chamber that his party was unable to support the motion of confidence in the Government economic policy. The Catholics, who have twenty-eight votes out of the Chamber's 100, had hitherto supported the Government and were represented in the Cabinet by the Ministers of Justice and Defence and Economic Affairs.

Tense scenes followed the Catholic leader's announcement. Finally, Dr. Colijn decided on adjournment of the discussion, which was agreed to, and a special meeting of the Cabinet was announced for to-morrow morning.

It is expected that the Cabinet will either resign or announce the dissolution of the House.—Reuter.

ROME EXPLAINS

Rome, July 23.

Official circles explain that the temporary suspension of the law concerning gold coverage of notes does not mean that the lira will be depreciated. The Italian Government intends replacing its gold reserves as soon as possible, it is explained.

The Government will exert control over the exchanges and through a quota system will be enabled to defend the lira promptly if it is attacked.—Reuter.

LIRA RALLIES

London, July 23. The lira which depreciated to 65½ following news of the Italian Government's decree regarding note cover, later rallied and closed at 61.11/16.—British Wireless.

CRISIS AVERTED

The Hague, July 24.

The Government of the Netherlands issued a statement to-day, saying: "As long as the Government is functioning it will be able to reject currency devaluation and defend the guilder, by means of the strongest measures, against direct and indirect attacks."

The Cabinet crisis has been averted by the Prime Minister, Dr. H. Colijn persuading the Second Chamber to adjourn to enable the Government to reconsider their view of the statement by the Catholic party, that they are willing to vote in favour of economy decrees, but at the same time are unwilling to pass a vote of confidence in the Government. It is stated that Dr. Colijn will be able to advise the Queen of the Netherlands as to the final decision to-day.

The belief is being expressed here that it is possible, if Dr. Colijn offers his resignation, the Queen will refuse to order the dissolution of Parliament.—United Press.

LINDBERGH HAS TURNED INVENTOR

"MECHANICAL HEART" NOW
PERFECTED

LIFE RESTORED
TO ANIMALS

By W. F. BULLOCK

New York, Friday.
Col. Charles Lindbergh, who eight years ago flew into the world's limelight, to-day stands distinguished as a great scientist.

Working with Dr. Alexis Carrel, of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research, Col. Lindbergh claims to have perfected a "mechanical heart" which confers synthetic immortality on human or animal organs.

Placed in this "chamber of artificial life" the organs, it is stated, can be infected with diseases which have baffled doctors throughout the ages, and their progress watched.

In this new field of study it is hoped that a course will be found for such dread ailments as heart disease, diabetes, tuberculosis, kidney disorders, and cancer.

SUPPLIES AIR TOO

The "heart" beats 60 times a minute and it supplies not only artificial blood but also synthetic air.

A year ago Dr. Carrel, who is a Nobel Prize winner, described Col. Lindbergh as "my best assistant in biology."

At the Rockefeller Institute he is shielded from the publicity he so much dislikes. He has luncheon with the nurses and medical staff, but instructions are given that when he is seen round the building no one must speak to him unless he first addresses them.

The story of the new artificial heart appears in the current number of Science, the official organ of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. The article bears the two signatures of Alexis Carrel and Charles Lindbergh.

AFTER 123 YEARS

In 1812, when Napoleon dominated Europe, the French scientist Gallois wrote: "If one could substitute for the heart a kind of injection of arterial blood, either natural or artificially made, one would succeed easily in maintaining alive indefinitely any part of the body whatever."

Col. Lindbergh and Dr. Carrel write modestly: "The purpose of the present article is merely to show how, after 123 years, the conception of Gallois has been realised."

They have made 26 experiments since Col. Lindbergh perfected his "heart."

Using dead fowls and cats from which blood had been drained, the two workers have restored life to various organs of the body.

They report, "Thyroid glands were kept more than 20 days with pulsating arteries and active circulation. They could have remained in the apparatus much longer. No blood clots and no important haemorrhages were observed."

It is hoped that science will now learn how to check such abnormalities as goitre, dwarfism, overgrowth, and certain forms of obesity.

Col. Lindbergh's achievement is hailed as of far greater importance to science than his Transatlantic flight—yet that flight has had its place in his new work.

FASHION NOTES

Wider and Shorter

PARIS STYLES

THE parachute silhouette, with a wide skirt, and shorter, has landed with a splash in the middle of the Paris summer season, wrecking the stream, or atom-line silhouette that has been worn for some years.

Over and over again the Paris dressmakers, at their fashion-parades, show dresses and skirts with the parachute skirt for day-time and for evening.

Indeed, the spread parachute skirt for evening dresses, and half-folded parachute for day-time dresses is the big news. Blouses with these skirts are necessarily slim, though lots of them are not fitted closely.

Everyday Wraps

Wraps, one for each dress, and each one different, are being worn in Paris. The "Depression Mood," consisting of one coat, and a wardrobe full of frocks, is not being adopted by the fashionable Parisienne.

Wraps in this season, when it is warm and sunny, are extravagant; they offer no protection whatever; they are, though, just the same more plentiful than ever. Women have two wraps, in some cases, to a single frock—a fitted, white glazed linen jacket, and a cape of the material of the frock. Or they will have a printed, sleeveless coat and a jacket.

BRITAIN'S PROGRESS

CHAMBERLAIN
ADVISES

(Our Own Correspondent.)

London, July 6.
Mr. Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, in the House of Commons yesterday when moving the third reading of the Finance Bill, the final stage of the Budget, gave the impression that everything is going "swimmingly" and there is really nothing to worry about. Though in other countries, said the Chancellor, they were having to contemplate fresh economies and fresh taxation, "here we see the burdens growing lighter year by year." The outlook was persistently and doggedly favourable. He mentioned these indications of prosperity: Progress in the building industry could hardly be more satisfactory.

Railway traffic, bank clearances, and retail trade all show a steady rise.

Exports are up by £16,000,000 for the first five months of this year as compared with last year.

Imports of raw material—the best of all barometers—were £1,000,000 more than in May of last year.

These were signs and pointers to show the direction of the wind. They all pointed in the same direction and they were all hopeful.

This week, he said, 1,200,000 people were sharing in the benefits of the restoration of economy cuts. In addition, 2,250,000 tax-payers were benefiting by the increased tax allowance. He made it clear that, in his opinion, a continuance of these results depended on the continuance of the National Government and the avoidance of Mr. Lloyd George's New Deal. He put it in this way:

"These results have come about as the result of our earlier efforts and sacrifices, and if we want to maintain them and progress further along the same

AMERICA'S FIRST LADY

WHAT SHE DID FOR HER COUNTRY

ACTIVITIES

By RUBY A. BLACK
United Press Staff Correspondent

Washington.
Trailing Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt for nine months is no job for a stay-at-home.

Mrs. Roosevelt recently said that she would be "off the record" until Sept. 23. But there are qualifications to that statement and even so it would be hardly more than long enough to rest up from the peace she has led since last fall.

Mrs. Roosevelt will be in Washington with the President for the Boy Scout Jamboree on August 26 and will speak at Chautauqua, N.Y., on August 23 and will go to San Diego, Calif., if the President decides to go to the exposition being held there.

For the rest of the summer Mrs. Roosevelt is keeping her plans dark except that she hopes to spend two to four weeks at the Roosevelt summer home at Campobello Island, Maine.

Here are just a few things Mrs. Roosevelt has done since last Sept. 26—and believe it or not—the most interesting things the First Lady does and says are not here—they are "off the record" the year round.

She has gone down into a practically perfect coal mine and visited practically perfect textile mills.

She has earned, for charity, by radio talks and writing, nearly as much as her husband earns as president.

She has been hostess at the biggest and fullest social season the White House has ever seen.

She has talked in open meetings, for charity, for education, for social security, for crime prevention, for work and recreation for the jobless and school-less young, for better housing, for peace, for honest and fair relations between employers and employees.

She has helped select a new $9,000 set of china for the White House and plan the modernisation of the White House kitchens.

She has campaigned—successfully—for the election of a veteran co-worker, Mrs. Caroline D'Day, to Congress.

ELECTIONEERING

She has helped organise her Hyde-Park neighbours in hopes of finding new work for people.

She used the $1,000 Gimble award to provide treatments for a boy suffering from infantile paralysis, helped wherever she could when she saw suffering or injustice in individual cases—but she never told of these.

She has honoured many women who have contributed to the country's welfare, including a speech at the dinner honouring Miss Jane Addams shortly before she died.

She was the first woman to make the commencement address at the University of North Carolina, and addressed graduating teachers in New York and miners and their families at Bellaire, O.

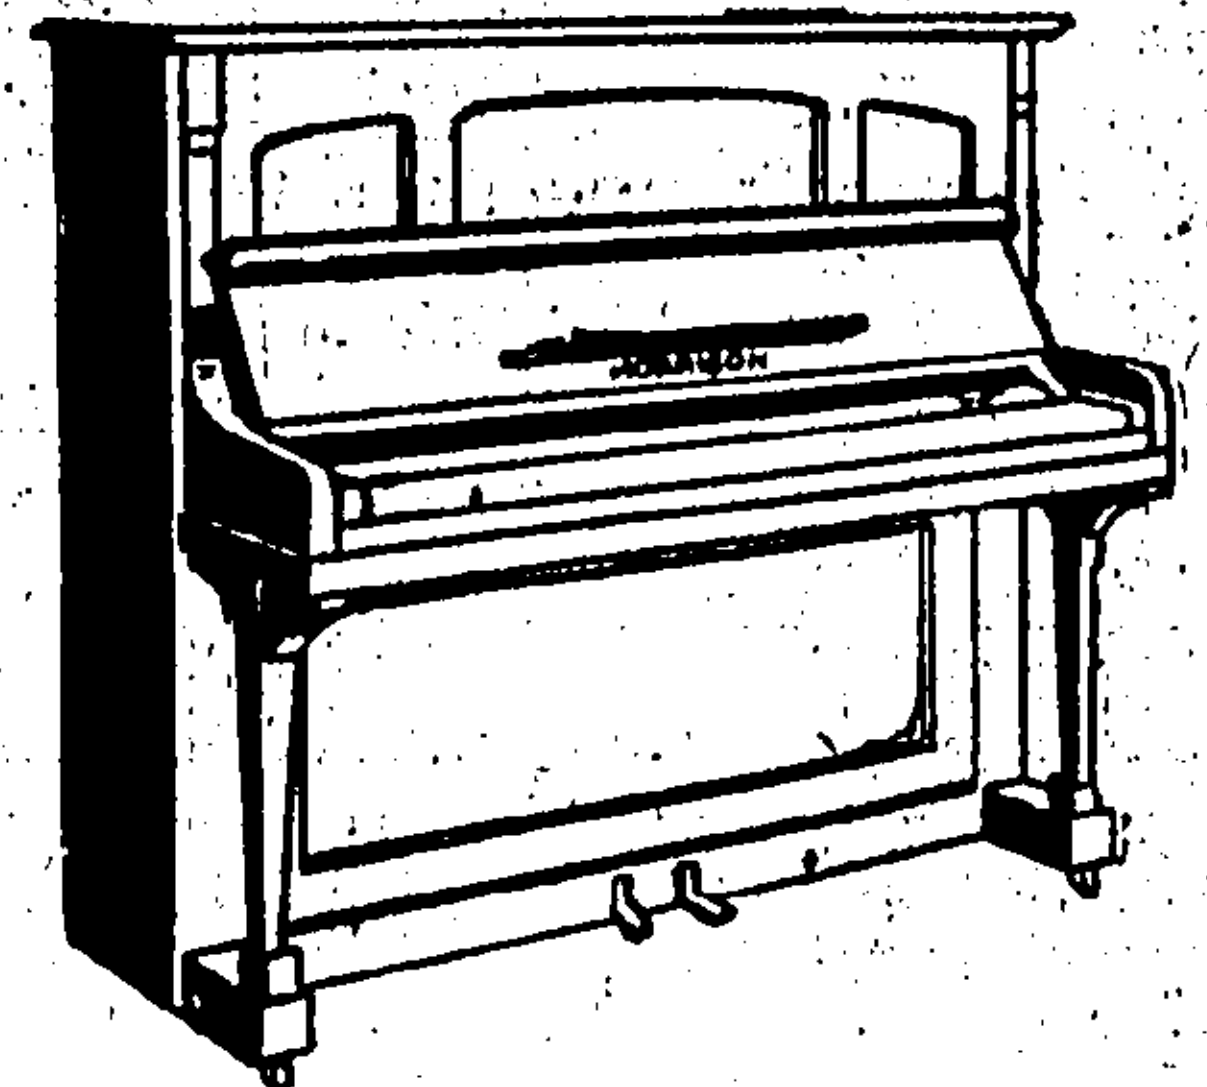

She has knitted sweaters, sponsored educational, philanthropic, and art projects, planted trees, and shaken tens of thousands of hands (as many as 6,000 in one week).

She caused the most controversy by saying, in connection with the Hauptmann verdict that she did not believe in the death penalty on circumstantial evidence.

road, we must avoid sharp reversals of policy and rash experiments calculated to undermine and dislocate public confidence." (Loud cheers).

This review annoyed both Labour and the Samuelite Liberals but the third reading was carried by 163-11.

TOO MANY SEEKING SAFE JOBS INITIATIVE BECOMING SUPPRESSED?

BY DR. E. D. LABORDE
(Careers Master at Harrow)

WE live to-day in a country which is over-populated to the extent of some 15 millions of people. Our towns and roads are crowded to a density far beyond the optimum. Our daily journey to our work, our visits to the cinema, or the sports ground, must all take place in the midst of an inconvenient press of our fellow men.

Such conditions are rapidly forcing us to adapt ourselves more and more to living in crowds; and crowds need regulation.

This comes partly from within the individual and partly from external authority. The individual recognises the need for orderliness, without which anarchy would reign, and his immediate response is what may be termed the queue-habit.

Anyone who watches a crowd at a tube booking-office will realise how well developed this habit is among us. But however advantageous its practical effects may be, its ultimate influence on the nation cannot fail to be the suppression of initiative and individuality.

When individual action is inadequate, external authority steps in. A grandmothersly State attempts to protect us from our potential folly at street-crossings, to save us from excessive drink, to shelter us from accident in workshop and factory.

We have become accustomed to being formed up and passed along by attendants. In one place, by officials in another, and by policemen in the streets. No force of initiative can survive constant shepherding.

The development of economic "rationalisation" tends in the same direction. Modern large-scale businesses, with their improved organisation and increased mechanical processes, have secured a grip on the nation which, whether we like it or not, is bidding fair to curtail our freedom in the most intimate spheres of life. It pays to follow the crowd, and only those who can afford high prices can escape the economic strait-jacket.

THE CHILD-MIND

While these conditions affect the nation at large, special influences tend to sap the initiative of the young. The substitution of "reasoning with the child" for discipline too often involves the constant imposition of a strong adult personality on the child-mind, with the result that the growth of initiative and independence of thought is atrophied. That is one of the reasons why the boys and youths of to-day cannot amuse themselves.

As soon as school life begins, the modern boy enters on the struggle of life. It is a paradox that competition should reach its highest degree of severity in an age which seeks to abolish it.

Strenuous competition at school and university for qualifications which will secure a good start in life leaves little time for thought at the very age when mental activity should be greatest. Only in some of the older foundations is their leisure to digest what is read.

When the struggle is over and the usual qualifications gained, young men do not feel disposed to risk the loss of several years' grind by striking out on a new venture. Hard-won ground must be maintained. They therefore tend to seek "safe" jobs, and only the most adventurous dare stray from the beaten paths.

UNPRODUCTIVE.

Besides, the tradition of our schools is to encourage the best pupils to aim at "black-coated" jobs, since these are supposed to be the most respectable and have reasonable security of tenure.

The result is that our best brains are diverted into careers that are not productive. This is less true now than it was five or ten years ago; but it is still far more true than it should be.

The severity of competition in finding openings makes the penalty for early failure too heavy for the ordinary young man to face the risk of it. Once out of the stream of recruits which flows from school to office and factory, the daring spirit who has struck out on a new line and has, perhaps through no fault of his own, failed to achieve his object, finds the greatest difficulty in re-entering it.

His school authorities have a new batch of leaving-pupils to place, and the employer is suspicious of applicants of unusual age.

Added to all this, incentives to adventure are fast disappearing from the modern world. Avenues have been closed and prizes reduced.

THE FUTURE

Vocations which were formerly precarious have become "safe" through the introduction of salaried posts. To strike out for oneself is perhaps to meet with the opposition of a large monopolistic concern or even the State itself. There is a feeling, too, that everything has been tried.

What the outcome of this repression of initiative will be one hardly dares to contemplate. Its political effects are already evident in certain countries. Foreign methods are unlikely to be copied here, but our own nation seems to be in danger of what may be called the dictatorship of crowd-instinct. The "good form" of pre-war days has gone, to be replaced by another and stronger—though not dissimilar—force; that of the herd which overwhelms and swallows up the individual.

AGED FOSSIL FOUND

BONES OF GIANT.

TITANOTHERE

Pasadena, Cal., July 11.

Discovery of the fossilised skeleton of a giant Titanotheres, a beast that roamed the Amargosa desert area more than forty million years ago, has been revealed by Dr. Chester Stock, paleontologist of the California Institute of Technology.

The rare find was made in a virtual graveyard of pre-historic beasts, a rock ledge where a titanotheres skull and other bones previously have been dug out.

A herd of the queer animals, which resembled somewhat a huge lumbering rhinoceros with two blunt horns, apparently perished here while the now torrid valley of here rock was a moist green meadow.

The Institute established a camp of fossil-hunters in the desert to search the area thoroughly.—United Press.

WOMAN ACCUSED OF ASSAULT

ALLEGED OBJECTION TO CONCUBINE

A young woman, Chu Fung, of 13 Lee Yuen Street East, appeared before Mr. V. Schofield at the Central Magistrate's Court this morning on a summons for assaulting another woman, Cheung Suk-hing, on July 11 at the Coffee Plantation, Soekun-poo, occasioning bodily harm.

Another person, Li Wo, was also named as a defendant. Li Wo is at present in Canton, it was stated, and a summons is to be issued in due course.
For the complainant, Mr. F. I. Zimmern stated that complainant was attending the funeral of her father-in-law and as she stepped out of her car, she was set on by the two defendants. His instructions were that the motive for the assault was that the first defendant, Chu Fung, wanted to be admitted into the family as concubine of the complainant's husband, and the complainant had done her utmost to prevent this. As a result of the assault, the complainant was detained in hospital for five days and was at present under her own doctor's orders.
Hearing of the case was fixed for August 7 at 2.30 p.m.

NEW YORK STOCK
EXCHANGEMARKET IRREGULAR
YESTERDAY

The following reports on the New York Stock market have been received through Messrs. Swan, Culbertson & Fritz:

The Wall Street Journal report on yesterday's market:—Stocks to-day were irregular. Profit-taking caused favorite issues to decline, but railroad securities were upward. Stocks on the Curb Exchange were also irregular. Utility and mining issues were strong. Bonds were upward, led by railroad issues.

S. C. & F. New York office cables: Securities were in moderate supply. After an active opening, traders became cautious.

New York and Chicago commodity reports received through Messrs. Swan, Culbertson & Fritz:—

Cotton: Prices declined on liquidation of July options and continued favorable reports regarding the progress of the crop.

Wheat: Reports of damage to the crop are plentiful and the drought in the Argentine continues, but outside buying was sparse and hedge insufficient to absorb profit and hedge sales. The mill markets are weak. Long interests are believed to be large.

Corn: Excellent crop news, weather conditions and the available supplies of Argentine corn continue to remain market factors.

Rubber: Foreign financial and political news are unsettling factors. The "spot" market is quiet.

Sugar: A quiet, but firm market. Hedge lifting is absorbing small liquidation. The technical position of the market is healthy.

ROAD SAFETY

The fact that the Ministry of Transport in London is circulating fifteen million copies of the "Highway Code" to all householders in Great Britain indicates the importance which the authorities place on acquainting the public with rules which are considered necessary for the safety of users of the roads. The Code is a summary, in simple language, of such rules, affecting the pedestrian as well as the motorist. Hongkong, some little time back, had a "Safety First" campaign, extending over a period of two weeks, and general opinion was that it proved of value. The effort, however, was too circumscribed to be really lasting in its effects, and the thought does arise whether or not the authorities here should not take steps somewhat similar to those now being put into effect at Home. The suggestion comes at an appropriate moment, seeing that there has just been issued a full and completely revised set of traffic regulations. So far, however, the only publicity given to these regulations has been their appearance in the Government Gazette, an organ which very few members of the general public ever have occasion to consult. These regulations, which number close on two hundred, occupy about fifty pages of the Gazette. They apply, of course, to all types of vehicles, whether privately-owned or public motor-cars, buses, lorries, rickshaws, public chairs, or trucks, and details are given of the various parking stands for motor-cars. So far as motorists are concerned, the information given is of the greatest value; indeed, every motorist is supposed to acquaint himself with the regulations. Very few, however, will be likely to order the Gazette for this purpose, and although the rules are usually also published and sold in booklet form, it would appear that those concerned could be much better served by being supplied with pamphlets setting out those regulations which directly affect them. In this way, the companies operating public services and the individual car-owner could be separately served, with only those parts of the regulations which directly concern them. There would then be no excuse for anyone not knowing the exact requirements of the law. At the same time, the authorities might consider the desirability of issuing free of charge similar circulars for pedestrians, setting forth the obligations required of them in co-operating in safety on the roads. Measures such as these would be far more effective and lasting in their results than spasmodic "Safety First" campaigns.

NOTES OF THE DAY

FAIR ENOUGH

A word in defence of the reported decision of Great Britain to allow the exportation of arms to Abyssinia. Up to the present Britain has scrupulously avoided any action which might contribute to a stiffening of the Abyssinian attitude against Italy and result in encouraging that country to go to war in defence of its independence. Britain has genuinely endeavoured to prevent the entry into Africa of any armaments which might be used for war, in keeping with the undertaking given by the British Government jointly with other interested European nations. But the position becomes somewhat altered when a European power, which insisted upon depriving Abyssinia of any means of defence, herself lends transporta with every modern engine of destruction and builds up on Abyssinia's frontier an enormous force for the prosecution of an offensive campaign. We do not suppose that any fair-thinking man would willingly stand by without interfering if he saw a well-armed belligerent about to maim an unarmed neighbour, no matter what the colour of his skin. Britain's decision can be justified, too, by the fact that no other nation, except Italy, has taken any steps to enforce an embargo against Abyssinia. At the same time, Britain will show no favouritism. If Italy wants to buy British munitions she will not be prevented. It all seems fair enough. If it were possible to prevent both of the antagonistic nations from obtaining weapons, Britain, we believe, would be the first to deny them the opportunity. But under the circumstances it would seem not only unjust, but deliberately encouraging to Italy's plan of conquest, to forbid the export of defensive weapons to the Ethiopians.

RULERS VS. REASON

Ban and banishment appear to be the best answers a dictatorship can make to newspapers and writers whose treatment of the regime is considered inexpedient. For evidence, there's the New York Times, banned, and a Chicago Tribune reporter, banished, from Italy for sayings unpleasant to the Fascist fancy. Probably it should be put more seriously than that. Dictators are not dilettante about these matters. They do not follow the press closely merely for entertainment, and mete out rebuke in any we-are-not-amused attitude. Behind the strict watch which Mussolini's agents keep over foreign periodicals in Italy is a compulsion that citizens of more democratic countries may find hard to appreciate. Dictatorships walk tight ropes. They are not balanced, as are representative governments, on the broad base of public opinion. They do not thrive on opposition, that acknowledged requisite factor in the representative system. They dare not depend on reason for support. They must meet slander, argument or fact with one clumsy weapon—force. An effective weapon, yes, temporarily. But still a clumsy one. For it thoroughly persuades nobody, not even the users, of the soundness of the cause in which it is wielded. And loyalty to be lasting must be of the head as well as of the heart. Dictators may imagine they can think for all those under their rule, that they can prevent their subjects from thinking, any but officially prescribed thoughts. But can dictators prevent men from thinking? Perhaps. But only for a while.

EQUITABLE ARRANGEMENTS

The fact of the matter is that in order to keep her export markets in such countries as the republics of South America, Britain must offer that territory some quid pro quo, and at the present juncture the "most favoured nation" clauses and various other economic arrangements seem to be the only means of guaranteeing an open door to British products in such areas. As a result of the Ottawa Conference, the export trade of the Dominions to the United Kingdom has been materially increased. And at the same time, although restrictions and embargoes may cause heart-burnings, the policy of the British Government in arranging trade agreements with foreign countries has been largely responsible for the increase of $14,300,000 in Great Britain's export trade for the first five months of 1935 as compared with the total for that period of 1934. Simultaneously, Britain's imports rose $4,000,000 in the same period. Britain might do worse than follow the present system, which, though it may require adjustment in detail, seems to be based upon a reasonably sound and practical foundation.

BRITAIN MUST GROW MORE FOOD

By COLLIN BROOKS

It is one of the weaknesses of democracy that Demos is led by easy, vivid catch-phrases. What Bret Harjo called "saber cuts of Saxon speech" stir the imagination and save the mind the trouble of thinking. Most political catch-phrases serve an excellent purpose, up to a point. Then they become treacherous. The new Prime Minister has found for us the necessary injunction, "Look to your meat!" The days when Britain had a meat that could keep out the attacker have passed, but even if we take the phrase as a metaphor the warning demands a double thought. It is necessary that we see to it that our defences are stout—but it is also necessary that we see to it that behind those defences the garrison is well provisioned.

According to the census of 1931 there are in Great Britain nearly 45,000,000 people.

We consume every year food to the value of about £630,000,000.

Of this amount we produce no more than £250,000,000 worth from our own soil.

We depend on over-seas suppliers for £380,000,000 worth of food each year.

If we look on ourselves, as we must in troubled times, as a garrison on these islands, there must be ferried over that meat of ours this vast quantity of food-stuffs.

If the supplies fail for only a bare three weeks, our lives are in chaos. Trade as we know it ceases, and we become a people precariously rationed by Authority, as we were in the grim middle and later years of the war when enemy submarines were holding up the ferries of food.

Whatever else we do or don't do, unless we ensure that these supply ships reach us regularly and safely we starve. In war, their failure to arrive means defeat.

That is one side of the question. This is the other!

Every year we pay out nearly £400,000,000 for foreign food.

In theory the people from whom we buy should be taking our manufactures in exchange or paying us interest on our foreign loans.

In practice the return bargain may not be made, or the interest payments may fall into default.

We must have their produce; they need not have our goods in exchange, and they may fall to reciprocate in any other way.

Because of various political needs the food orders that go out to the various nations which supply us, both British and foreign, are subjected to various arrangements—quotas and the like.

These arrangements mean that neither the prices we pay nor the goods we get follow anything like a "natural" trend.

Our need for imported food cannot even satisfy the Free-Trade fanatic who would have every part of the globe employed on its easiest produce, no matter into what terrible straits this might fling any particular nation in times of crisis.

It certainly cannot satisfy anybody who desires to see a Britain defensively and economically set above mischance.

In 1918 the war had compelled us to do with our soil what nations like Holland, Belgium, Denmark, and France have always done—make the most of it as a food producer.

The area under crops now in England and Wales is only 75 per cent. of the acreage in 1918.

More and more land has gone to grass since the end of the war; pasture acreage has risen steadily and without check since 1919.

Wheat, which is our staple food product, has suffered a decline in production of quite 50 per cent. We could, if we wished, double our wheat production.

Of the total agricultural acreage in 1918, over one-seventh now lies fallow.

After the lesson of 1916-18 we should never have permitted the fall back in national food production.

Even had we lacked that lesson, forethought and care for the benefit and future of our race should have taught us that the more food we produce by our own hands from our own soil the better for us.

There is no graver error in statecraft than to try to view any question as a matter of economics only. The economic cost of a policy may be amply repaid by the political and social benefits.

One of the secrets of Britain's industrial greatness has been that the urban communities have been constantly refreshed with rural stock. One of the symptoms of national decadence is the rapid diminution of rural stock.

There is yet another aspect which cannot be overlooked.

Men and women flourish more when they are fed on the foods and drinks that are traditional and native to their beings.

One need not be a particularly hazy mystic to agree that jangled nerves and a worried mind can be steadied and refreshed by a return to the land in which one was born and to one's native air.

Still less need one be a mystic to realise that the fresh native food of one's own land has a virtue that is lacking in alien and exotic foods transported under artificial conditions of storage from the ends of the earth.

On every count we must condemn the national habit of relying more and more on supplies of less excellent food from overseas.

Our national safety, our national progress, and our individual welfare demand that we grow more food.

The Very Idea!

THIS EFFICIENCY BUSINESS

By Eddie Kelly, Live-Wire

SINCE last night we have become efficient all over. It all came about through reading the advertisements in an American magazine.

We get a kick out of any modern advertisements that we see.

In fact we got so many kicks out of reading our American magazine last night that we became black and blue all over.

"What? A hundred and eighty years old to-day! My dear, you don't look a day over 170. However do you do it?"

"It's that new Creme de Laichikok Foreshore Mud, darling. I just put it on between meals. And just fancy! It comes in 57 different varieties, to suit any size face!"

"Oo, la, la! I must buy a keg of it immediately!"

Now, that's the stuff to give 'em.

Take the case of our old pal Whistletooth.

Wealthy, he is, with pots of money. Good looking and of noble birth, he had a luxurious steam yacht and a steam train and railway station. Yet everybody avoided him.

When he walked into a theatre the whole audience made a dive for the fire exits. He couldn't make it out. Even his best friends wouldn't tell him.

As soon as they saw him coming they stepped on it and aimed for the nearest horizon. But at last one of his enemies told him—by letter.

You guessed it—he had halitosis. Ninety per cent. of our unhappy marriages in Hongkong are due solely to this ravaging disease.

That makes you sit up, doesn't it?

Sit down again and we'll tell you about another fellow.

He thought: "Holy Mike! Another second of this and I'm asphyxiated!" But, just to be polite, he said: "You stick here. I'm going to throw myself into the harbour."

That ought to be enough to make any self-respecting girl go and wash herself all over with Life's Soap. Take our own case. We received a letter saying, "Are you an unemployed journalist? WHY NOT BECOME AN UNEMPLOYED ARCHITECT?" We could have been anything: electrical engineer, lift-driver, deep-sea diver; all by signing the dotted line and sending no money.

We became an architect in three weeks. Our wife, who read all the instructions, became an architect, too. If young Eddie had been old enough to read he'd have been an architect.

We used to practice on each other.

The wife would fall through the front door and say:

"I got that there ralse, Eddie! That brings me up to $11,569.69 per an' next week they're going to make me managing director!"

And we'd say:

"And it's all due to the Inter-changeable Correspondence School! Now we'll be able to get that yellow and red blanket for next winter."

When we sit down and strap ourselves into a chair and think of how on earth we got on before there were any advertisements, when we didn't have phorhorea or halitosis, or unsightly hairs, skin blemishes, no ambition, couldn't play music on a saw, couldn't hold board meetings, spellbound, and were never offered the opportunity to earn $1,000 a week giving away packets of giant beans... well, it makes us feel sorry for us, when we look back on ourself.

Picture of young Hongkong wife proving to husband just how much she kneaded dough to keep up appearances.

"Never mind reading all that stuff about your parents. What does it say about how I was dressed?"

(Special to "Telegraph")

Mr. Fish added that in the 1926 election, the issue would be the restoration of constitutional government and the ending of one-man rule.—United Press.

FATHER AND SON QUALIFY FOR LAWN BOWLS FINAL

PERRY HUSTLED BY VAN RYN

Champion's Second Match At Wimbledon

(By H. S. Scrivener)

London, June 28. When the reigning champion is on court his match is bound to be the one of paramount importance, unless it is one which he is likely to win easily. Perry's second match in the singles, which was also the second on the centre court, was of paramount interest yesterday because, although he was expected to beat J. Van Ryn, it was fully realised that he was up against a proposition of some toughness, even though Van Ryn is not ranked as high as he once was in America and does not now come in her first ten.

However, he always seems happy and comfortable at Wimbledon, especially on the centre court, and, thanks to his clever volleying and plucky ground play, gave us an exhilarating exhibition of the aggressive game which Perry found hard to combat, and did not combat, I feel bound to add, particularly well. He was never, as it turned out, in any danger of losing; but having gained the mastery after losing a rather happy-go-lucky first set, he failed to press his advantage home in the manner befitting a champion.

Local Tennis League

"B" DIVISION FIXTURES

The Central British Association will be the first of the local tennis teams to complete their League fixtures if they play off their "B" Division tie to-day against the Indian R.C. in accordance with the officially revised programme.

This will be their last match as they have already played seven of their fixtures without winning a single contest but they have at least done their utmost to expedite the competition.

The Chinese R.C., who have won all their four matches played, will be having a rest to-day, but the South China A.A., who have also won all four of their engagements, will meet the Club de Recreio at King's Park. The Portuguese have quite a useful team but one hardly good enough to beat the Chinese.

The programme of "B" Division matches for this afternoon is appended:

C.B.A. v. Indian R.C.
Hongkong C.C. v. University
Civil Service v. Kowloon C.C.
Club de Recreio v. South China

HOW SALICA WON BOXING TITLE

RIOTOUS END

Los Angeles, July 6. Because he took the referee at his word, Lou Salica, 19-year-old Italian-American from Brooklyn, New York, boasts a victory over Pablo Dano of the Philippines, and holds the world's bantam-weight title as recognised by the California State Athletic Commission.

Fighting Dano with the latter's title at stake, Salica after five dull rounds before 8,000 people, was told by the referee that if he did not show more willingness to fight he would be thrown out of the ring.

Salica had lost the first five rounds to Dano. Suddenly, however, following the referee's warn-

NOTTS WIN ON FIRST INNINGS

LEADERS' ATTACK MASTERED

TEST PLAYERS IN FORM

London, July 23.

Rain undoubtedly saved Yorkshire from their first defeat of the season when playing against Notts at Trent Bridge during the past three days. Play was curtailed on Saturday owing to the weather conditions when Yorkshire had made 110 runs for four wickets but they were well behind when stumps were drawn to-day.

Continuing their innings which was interrupted by the weather on Saturday, the Yorkshire eleven yesterday scored 268 runs. Notts played havoc with the visitors' attack which was so completely mastered by Arthur Stables and Harris that 402 runs were on the board before the last wicket fell.

Stables contributed a score of 125 runs without losing his wicket while Harris had made 77 when he was dismissed.

In their second innings Yorkshire had lost one wicket for 20 runs when stumps were drawn.

The match was a benefit to B. Lilley, the Notts wicket-keeper.

Several of the players selected for next Saturday's fourth test match against the South Africans at Old Trafford, revealed brilliant form, the most outstanding feat being by J. C. Clay, the Glamorgan bowler, who captured 12 wickets against Hampshire for a total of 134 runs.

Clay was playing at Bournemouth when he took seven for 54 to dismiss Hampshire in their first innings for 160 runs. Glamorgan replied with a total of 187 to win the match on first innings.

In their second knock Hampshire were not sent back until they had made 341 runs, of which Hossie contributed 136. Clay had another five victims for 80 runs. Glamorgan had 242 for nine wickets at the close of play.

LANCASHIRE WIN

Lancashire scored an eight-wicket victory over Surrey at the Oval where the hosts scored 321 runs. E. R. T. Holmes, the captain, was in form with the bat and made 104 runs when Surrey declared their second innings closed at 225 for six wickets. Holmes had 50 without losing his wicket.

Lancashire had made 307 runs in their first innings, Hopwood scoring 89, and they then made 240 for two wickets. Washbrook was responsible for 80 of the runs.

An exciting finish was witnessed at Maidstone where Kent, thanks to Freeman, beat Middlesex by five runs.

The hosts rattled up a score of 216 runs and then dismissed Kent in opposition for 183. Freeman taking five for 108. When their second innings total had reached 168 for eight Kent applied the closure and Middlesex replied with 216 runs. Freeman this time had six wickets for 118 runs.

ANOTHER CLOSE MATCH

Another close affair was the match at Northampton where Worcestershire beat the hosts by 30 runs, after only scoring 93 in their first innings. It was Perkins who did most of the damage, taking six for 54.

Northants went to the wickets they set up 171 runs of which Cox made 74, while Warwickshire took their second innings to 304 before their last wicket fell.

101 runs. Northants made a gallant attempt to score the runs but except for Bakewell who scored 141, the batsmen were unequal to the occasion. The innings closed at 199.

F. R. Santall, the Warwickshire batsman, took his benefit in the match between his county and Sussex at Birmingham where the visitors won by eight wickets.

Sussex scored 330 runs in the first innings in which John Parks made 160 and Hollies took seven for 118. Warwickshire replied with 177, John Parks following up his batting feat by taking five wickets for 40 runs. In the follow-on Warwickshire made 212 and Sussex scored 62 for two wickets.

DUNCANS BEAT SILVAS

LOSERS FAIL TO STRIKE TRUE FORM

CONTEST CONCEDED ON SECOND LAST HEAD

(By "Sagax")

Catching their opponents on an off-day, L. A. R. Duncan and R. Duncan, yesterday, qualified for the final of the Open Lawn Bowls Pairs Championship by a margin of 22 shots to 14 scored on 20 heads, their opponents, F. X. M. da Silva and C. G. Silva, conceding the match at this stage after a heavy downpour had fallen whilst the last head of the day was being played.

The elimination of the Silvas, who were favoured in many quarters to win the title, was not due entirely to their complete lack of form as the Duncans were playing a class of bowls that was always of a fairly high standard, with both father and son bringing off some brilliant shots at various stages of the match.

The younger Duncan was drawing some beautiful woods and on many of the heads was by far the better of the two leads. He was able to give his father valuable support and took every advantage of his opponent's poor form. There was a period when F. X. M. da Silva played extremely bad bowls and during the course of eleven heads at an early stage of the game the Duncans chalked up fourteen shots against the Silvas' five.

DUNCAN SENIOR SHINES

The elder Duncan was deadly with both his drawing and his driving and it was invariably his last wood which saved the day for the pair whenever they found themselves in difficulties. There were times when he was faced with a heavy score but a drive gave them the count or saved them several shots. It was largely due to the brilliant form revealed by the father that the pair were able to qualify for the last match of the tournament.

C. G. Silva, like his cousin, rarely or never touched top form and although he brought off some clever shots he was out-played by his opponent. On one head, when the Duncans registered a count of five at a critical stage of the game, Duncan senior drew three shots in succession whereas C. G. Silva was unable to get anywhere near the jack to save a heavy, and what ultimately proved a fatal, count.

DUNCANS TAKE LEAD

A two on the first head and a single on the second gave the Silvas a lead at the start but the Duncans immediately caught up with a three on the third. The younger Duncan lay three shots against F. X. M. da Silva and the father drew a fourth, but C. G. Silva knocked out one to concede three.

The Silvas had one on the next head but the Duncans claimed two singles to take the lead again but they gave away a two for the Silvas to lead 6-5 at the end of the seventh head. On the eighth head the Silvas were lying one shot when Duncan senior, with one of his characteristic drives carried the jack and registered a count of three (Continued on Page 9.)

BOWLS MATCHES TO-DAY

Semi-Final Of Pairs Championship

Weather permitting the last but one match of the Open Pairs Lawn Bowls Championship will be played this evening when opponents will be found for the Duncans, who yesterday defeated the Silvas in the first of the semi-final matches.

In reaching the semi-final stage, Medina and Cavanagh eliminated E. G. Post and W. E. Hollands by 23-14; A. O. Brown and B. E. Maughan 30-9; A. Macfarlane and J. Russell 21-13; and P. J. Jones and A. W. Grimmer 15-14, while Eccleshall and Shepherd beat Dr. N. P. Karanjia and Dr. F. S. Fernando 20-15; J. T. Tetley and D. W. Waterton 20-15; J. S. Landolt and A. E. Coates 25-6; and P. ### BRUCE MITCHELL INJURED

When the South Africans beat Staffordshire by an innings and 42 runs at Stoke recently the ball reared unexpectedly, and after an accident to Bruce Mitchell, the South African captain refrained from using his pace bowlers. Mitchell had to have stitches put in a wound over his right eye, caused by a ball deflected by the wicket-keeper's glove. The blow rendered Mitchell unconscious for ten minutes.

to take the lead by 8-6. The ninth head saw the Silvas lying two when C. G. Silva tried to face an opposition wood for a count of three, but in his attempt he knocked the jack to one of the Duncans' woods.

During this stage the Silvas were not revealing anything like their best form and were giving away shots by bumping up opposition woods or being completely wide with their deliveries.

Another three went to the Duncans on the tenth head when the younger Duncan lay two shots against his opponent and the elder Duncan drew a third. C. G. Silva took out one of the shots, but in doing so, knocked the jack immediately behind the two counters. He then attempted to carry the jack to back woods but just touched the "kitty" and conceded three. This allowed the Duncans to lead by 12-6.

SILVAS DRAW LEVEL

The Duncans scored a single on the eleventh head while the Silvas replied with a two on the next, on which the younger Duncan was lying three shots when his father drew a fourth, the woods all being bunched around the jack. With his first wood, C. G. Silva made no mistake with his drive, but he was unable to prevent the Duncans from lying a wood well behind and to one side of the rink.

There then followed a drawing duel between the two skips, Silva being the more successful by drawing two shots.

Duncan senior made full use of one of his destructive drives on the thirteenth head to break up the position when the Silvas were lying three. He was able to drive the jack to one of his own woods and thus took the lead by 14-8. By scoring a two, two singles and a two on the next four heads the Silvas were able to level the scores, at 14-14.

The Duncans, or rather, the elder Duncan, nearly lost the match on the sixteenth head when, in employing one of his famous drives, he took out his own second wood to leave the Silvas lying five shots. However, with his last wood, he was able to make better use of a drive and carried the jack to a single opposing wood, thus saving four shots.

The eighteenth head was the deciding one of the match, for the Silvas, who were not as accurate as they have been in previous rounds, gave away a five which should never have been conceded. Young Duncan lay two shots in a fairly open head while the elder Duncan drew three consecutive shots through quite an easy port. A player of C. G. Silva's calibre should have been able at least, to follow Duncan senior, if not beat him on the draw, but the Club de Recreio player was wide of his objective and allowed the Duncans to chalk up their five shots and take the lead by 19-14.

A single on the 19th head made the game hopeless for the Portuguese pair and when, in pouring rain, the 20th head gave the Duncans another two, the Silvas gave up the match, requiring as they did a possible eight on the last head to draw level.

The fortnightly whist drive of the Craignower Cricket Club will be held on Saturday, commencing at 9 p.m.

AMAZING SWIM

37 Miles And Molested By Sharks

Santa Monica, Cal., July 23. Although he swam 37 miles in 21 hours Paul Chotteau, the noted French swimmer, failed to conquer the distance between Santa Matallina Island and the Mainland, because the undertow took him out to sea again at the very end.

Chotteau started his Marathon effort last Saturday and had no trouble until sharks molested him fifteen miles out of Santa Matallina. The crew of his accompanying boat kept them at bay by splashing the water with their paddles.

Less than half a mile from land he was carried back to sea by a cross current and an undertow, and although he failed to achieve his life goal, Chotteau broke the record for the longest swim from Matallina, namely 20 1/2 miles, set up by George Young a Canadian Swimmer.—United Press.

The many friends of Mr. John S. H. Waan, secretary to the Royal Italian Consulate General, and Mrs. Mary Waan, will regret to learn of the death of their infant daughter, Natalina K. F. Waan, which occurred at the French Hospital this morning. The funeral will take place at the Roman Catholic Cemetery to-morrow, passing the Monument at 5.30 p.m.

CHAPTER XXIX

Sally said furiously, "I don't understand it. I simply don't get it at all." She glanced at the inoffensive tips and at Clarence, stooped and graying, in the background.

"You say he said he was going to the city?" Sally demanded.

Clarence nodded. They had been over the ground several times before, but if the young lady wanted to ask the same questions over and over he had no choice but to answer them.

"He say he goin' to the city," Clarence elaborated, with a side-long roll of cheeks and eyes in a dark face. "He say to me to look up."

"And that was day before yesterday?"

"Yes'm. In the evenin'. We ain't heard nothing from him since."

Sally waved an afternoon newspaper in his eyes. "Have you seen this?"

"No'm. Ain't seen nothin'." Clarence's eyes executed a sudden roll of apprehension. "They ain't nothin' in 'bout Miss Michael, is they?"

Sally laughed—an unpleasant laugh, drawing back the corners of her lips from small predatory teeth.

"Read it." "Read it?" "Pa can't read," he said. "Lissen he has a magnifying glass. His eyes is bad."

"What do it say?" Clarence wanted to know.

Tips bent over the newspaper, reading slowly. "It says how Mister Michael is a lord or something," he said slowly. "It says how his daddy was a son of a lord in England or Ireland and now Mister Michael, he come into the business."

"Exactly," Sally Moon, with a sound that was more like a snort than the sarcastic laugh she had intended, slipped down into the shabby porch chair. Over her linked, gloved hands she regarded the two shabby men.

"I believe you two know more about this than you pretend to," she said on a note of angry suspicion. "I believe you perfectly well know where Michael is."

"O'm. Clarence shook his head. "Well, I'm going to find out," he said softly. Before either one of them could stop her she had flung herself inside the door of Michael's house. "I'm going to search his papers," she said. "And don't either of you interfere!"

She was inside the room which had served Michael as a bedroom before either one could say a word. Tips looked at his father, and the older man looked back apprehensively.

"She ain't got a bit o' business in there," the boy said humbly. "We got to stop her!" Clarence wanted to know.

Sally went through bureau drawers like a whirlwind. The neat, plain, baro chamber did not afford many hiding places. A bed, tidily made up with a mended white spread, a common oak chest of drawers, a wardrobe with one of the old-fashioned doors swinging wide—she went through them all.

There was little enough. There was a little box, a handful of old letters with a postmark of a little town in a western state. A thick, clumsy old gold watch. A button box.

Sally sifted through the letters. The stable boy came to the door to stare at her.

"You go away, Tips," she said crossly. "Don't you bother me. This is my business."

"Ain't nobody got any right buttin' into Mister Michael's private things," he said stubbornly. But he did not interfere. After all, it was the girl his employer had been engaged to marry.

Clarence had shuffled out into the kitchen. He could hear him rattling pots and pans and setting down the cups with angry gusto. Sally paid no attention to all this. She had come with a determination to go through Michael's belongings, to see if she could find any clue to his disappearance. She glanced into the living room after a busy five minutes, a small bundle in her hand.

Tips watched her go, open-mouthed. His father came out of the kitchen hesitatingly. "That her car goin' away?"

"That's it," Tips sniffed, going into Michael's room and picking up a cushion Sally had dropped in her haste. "She sure made a mess of this here place. She sure is a big-talking young lady, Miss Moon."

"Here!" Clarence uttered contemptuously. "Ain't no Moons even goin' to come high-tonin' me. I know 'em."

"She taken away a lot of stuff of Mister Michael's," Tips offered hesitatingly. "Letters and such."

Clarence grinned, an old man's wide, sly grin. His lips were stretched inconspicuously wide. "She did, huh?"

"Yes, suh!" The stable boy was emphatic. "Looks like Mister Michael run away from her while the rummaging was goin' on. What you think about it?"

His father lifted his shoulders in an eloquent shrug. "Boy, I ain't mindin' nobody's business."

"Where'd you find 'em, anyway?" Clarence demanded. "You talk-crazy, sonny-boy. Course we're stayin'."

And, case that girl comes back here lookin' some more, we goin' to lock up this here place."

He turned a key in the lock and went back to his leisurely puttering among the kettles. Tips wandered out into the stableyard, fed the horses and idly swept up some scattered hay. In the kitchen, behind the red checked curtains, an old man took out an official-looking paper and chuckled over it.

"Here's somethin' than big-takin' young lady ain't goin' to find," Clarence said to himself. "Cause I got it first. An' it's Mister Michael's private business."

It was the marriage certificate of Michael Heatheroo and Katharine Strykhurst.

Sally rushed to her room and opened the letters she had found in Michael's bureau. They were not very interesting letters. There were several notes from the bank about the mortgage. There was a bill of sale for a mare. There were one or two brief and badly written, personal letters from a man in Montana—a man who signed himself quite simply "Bill." Nothing incriminating, nothing to point the way Michael had gone.

Sally stood staring at the letters in bafflement and anger. Her temperament demanded that she expend energy on someone. So she dressed herself in plain dark silk and boarded a train for the city. The clipping about Michael's inheritance lay in the smart dark blue handbag.

She went straight to Mr. Downrigg's hotel and that gentleman came down to the foyer to meet her. He was a lean, elderly Englishman with a stoop and a courteous, tired voice. No, he hadn't had any communication from Mr. Heatheroo as yet. And that was odd because Mesars. Malley & Gerhardt had assured him Michael was easily to be found. All his telephone calls on the day before had been fruitless.

Mr. Heatheroo, the servants said, was away and it was not known when he would return.

"Something's happened then," Sally announced firmly. "Something happened to Michael the night he came to New York." She knew it all now. She had been stupid to be so frightened and angry. Of course Michael had been hurt. He had no reason on earth to run away on the eve of this triumph.

Her manner softened perceptibly. She had met Mr. Downrigg with an air of challenge, thinking he knew something about the absent Michael, thinking, perhaps, he had aided and abetted him in his escape.

"You must help me," she said, her voice taking on its cooling note. "We must search the hospitals—the morgues."

"My dear young woman!" shuddered Mr. Downrigg. "Surely you don't think—"

She was firm, but to show him how deeply she was affected by the thought of Michael injured or dead she wept a little, quite prettily and convincingly.

"We must," she said. "We dare not do otherwise. After all," she reminded him, with a liquid glance of those dark, opaque eyes, "I'm his promised wife, you know."

She could not resist telling the story to newspaper reporters. Dead or alive, Michael should not escape her.

(To Be Continued).

CINEMA NEWS

NOTES FROM THE THEATRES

"The Mystery of Edwin Drood," the most mystifying of mystery stories, has been booked for showing at the King's Theatre on Friday.

Claude Rains, the famous "Invincible Man," has the leading role, that of a sinister choir master. Those who have seen this film declare it to be a picture that has you sitting on the very edge of your chair from the opening scene to the dramatic and spectacular ending when the mystery is solved. Four of Hollywood's best-known writers, Leopold Atlas, Bradley King, John Balderston and Gladys Unger, did the screenplay, and one of the most successful directors in pictures, Stuart Walker, directed. The film has been produced on a grand and spectacular scale with some of the largest sets that have ever been constructed for pictures. Supporting Claude Rains is a cast of film notables such as is rarely seen in one picture. Among them are Douglas Montgomery, Heather Angel, David Manners, Valerie Hobson, Francis L. Sullivan, E. E. Clive, Forrester Harvey and Walter Kingsford.

"Carnival"

Three honest-to-goodness troupers head the cast of "Carnival," the Columbia production, opening tomorrow at the Queen's Theatre. They are Letty Tracy, fast-talking star of more than twenty pictures, Sally Eilers and Jimmy Durante, famous professor of the schmozzle. Tracy trained years in small stock companies before he ever set foot upon a Broadway stage. He played vaudeville, hoofing it and speaking in the category of the professionals, "he knows the ropes." His first big role came in "Broadway" on the New York stage. Later a motion picture studio bought the production and Tracy was signed to play the same part he enacted on the stage.

Sally Eilers, beautiful blonde actress, first began in pictures with Mack Bennett. Her first picture was the "Goodbye Kiss." After several years of hard work, Jimmy Durante decided he wanted to go on the stage. He started singing songs of his own, improving in roustabout joints on the Bowery and Coney Island. Later he migrated to Brooklyn beer halls with a church charity or lodge benefit sandwiched in. He met Lou Clayton and Eddie Jackson, making the noted trio of Clayton, Jackson and Durante. It was vaudeville that brought stardom for the team. They were featured in "Show Girl" and "New Yorkers" as well as other revues. Durante made his motion picture debut in "Roadhouse Night" with Helen Morgan and Charles Ruggles. "Carnival" is the story of a puppeteer, played by Tracy, who tries to bring up his son without a mother. This human story was written by Robert Riskin, the author of those famous hits, "Lady Burglar" and "It Happened One Night" and "Broadway Bill." Walter Lang directed.

"The Woman in Red"

Barbara Stanwyck has the most dynamic role of her career in her new First National production, "The Woman in Red," which is showing for its first time today at the Alhambra Theatre. This talented star has an unusually strong vehicle in "The Woman in Red," and makes the most of every scene. The picture, based on the popular novel, "North Shore" by Wallace Irwin, is filled with thrills and intense dramatic action set in the luxurious atmosphere of Long Island country estates.

Miss Stanwyck appears in the character of a Kentucky girl thoroughly versed in horse lore who, when her family fortunes are reversed, becomes a professional rider for a wealthy New York society woman. Through her skill as a rider she brings out the ribbon after another to the owner, whose gratitude turns to hate when she wins the man they both love. Miss Stanwyck is charming in the lighter moments and the romantic situations, but she rises to the height of emotional acting in the intense dramatic sequences, especially in a sensational court trial in the smashing climax, in which she is willing to sacrifice love and honour in order to save a man she knows to be innocent from conviction on a murder charge. Gene Raymond, in the role of an impoverished young aristocrat who sweeps the Kentucky beauty off her feet in a whirlwind romance, proves himself a magnetic lover. As well as an accomplished horseman, Genevieve Tobin, always the finished actress, gives an unusually fine portrayal of the wealthy society woman who employs Miss Stanwyck and does everything to break up her love match after she herself has lost out. She brings out the vicious characteristics of the woman of polished surface with great finesse. There is an exceptionally large and talented supporting cast, of those deserving special mention for their strong characterizations including Philip Reed, Dorothy Tree, Russell Hicks, Nella Walker, Claude Gillingwater, Doris Lloyd, Hale Hamilton and Arthur Treacher.

"Vagabond Lady"

To his dignified father and brother, Tony Spear was an embarrassing responsibility. To Josephine Spigars, the brother's fiancée he was a delightful companion. This is the gist of the riotously funny plot of "Vagabond Lady," the Hal Roach-M-G-M production, terminating its local engagement to-day at the Queen's Theatre. The elder Spear is the millionaire owner of a department store, whose motto is "Dignity—Always."

Josephine's father, an irresponsible character, is Head Janitor of the store and a former college mate of his boss. John, in planning his marriage to Josephine, has stressed the importance of dignity, culture and poise. But when Tony, his brother, arrives on the scene, after a round-the-world cruise in an ancient sailing vessel, he tells "Jo" that "tomorrow" is a long way off so "today" should be enjoyed to the fullest. The result of the two conflicting philosophies is humorous—and at times dramatic. At any rate, it results in complications. Further when "Jo" and Tony discover that they love each other, things take a rapid turn. There are grief results when some boisterous companions and Tony's drunken man Friday, a sailor named Corky, upset the applicant and put Tony in a bad light with "Jo." The situation is finally straightened out when "Jo's" habit of chewing gum upsets the wedding ceremony, driving John frantic. Tony finds it easy to talk John out of the marriage idea, and then proceeds to annoy "Jo" for himself. Featured in the production are Robert Young, Evelyn Venable, Reginald Denny, while the supporting cast includes such players as Berton Churchill as Mr. Spear, Frank Craven as Mr. Spigars and others of note. Mr. Young as the irresponsible "Tony" makes himself delightful. Miss Venable makes the beautiful and likeable "Jo" while Denny does the exceptionally fine work as the dignified "John."

"Woman in the Dark"

The question of whether a man and woman who have incurred society's disapproval have a right to each other's love is daringly answered in "Woman in the Dark," showing at the King's Theatre to-day. In unfolding his plot, the author of "The Thin Man" has probed to the quick the emotions of his principal characters. John Bradley, on parole after serving a prison sentence for manslaughter and Louise Loring, a woman trying to end an unpleasant affair, are caught in a maelstrom of events which they have no power to control. Handcuffed from the start, they are persistently persecuted for the very things that they are trying to live down. Ralph Bellamy is cast in the understanding and capable role of Tommy Locke, Bradley's

PEACE BALLOT'S DISCLOSURE

BALDWIN'S RESPONSE

London, July 23.
The Prime Minister, Mr. Baldwin, and the Foreign Secretary, Sir Samuel Hoare, to-day received a deputation of organisers of the National Declaration on Peace and Disarmament, commonly known as the Peace Ballot, in which eleven and a half million votes were cast out of an estimated possible thirty million.

The deputation, led by Lord Cecil, presented the result of the voting on six questions submitted, which varied from majorities of thirteen to one in favour of support of the League of Nations, to three to one in favour of the employment of military sanctions. The majority for total abolition of military and naval aircraft by international agreement was four to one.

Lord Cecil said half a million voluntary workers, by whose services the ballot was taken, had found everywhere, but especially in humble homes, an eagerness to vote and a very intelligent appreciation of the issues.

The Dean of Chichester emphasised the great interest the churches had taken in the national declaration. It had revealed a marked development of opinion, for many who started with pacifist opinions had come to see that the full doctrine of the Covenant was vital to the preservation of peace. Miss K. D. Courtney said the ballot had appealed to women because it represented a recognition of the value of the judgment and intelligence of the ordinary citizen, and because it enlisted the support of people of all parties.

PREMIER'S REPLY

The Prime Minister welcomed the deputation, which, he said, would be aware that the foreign policy of His Majesty's Government was founded upon the League. That had been made plain many times in declarations and by their actions at Geneva, where they had taken the lead in endeavouring to secure a settlement of international disputes by peaceful means, in accordance with the Covenant. He would not discuss the questions submitted in the ballot in detail, some of which frankly he would wish to see put in a different form, but he could not but be grateful for the deputation's action in coming to see him and to know that the object of the ballot was not to criticise the Government, but to show that a large volume of public opinion was behind them in the efforts they were making to-day to maintain the authority of the League.

He concluded:—"We are living in a period of very disturbed international relations, and I am glad of this opportunity to assure you that the Government intend to persist in the policy they have hitherto pursued, and that the League remains the sheet anchor of British policy."—British Wireless.

RIVAL ATHLETIC ASSOCIATIONS

ALLEGED ASSAULT ON OFFICIAL

It was alleged that the Chairman of the Chinese Athletic Association had received letters demanding money, and that he was subsequently assaulted by a number of men, when Chung Ngai-tai and five other men appeared before Mr. Thomson at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning in answer to summonses for assaulting Lau Mo-lung. Hearing was remanded until Thursday next.

Mr. M. A. da Silva appeared on behalf of the complainant, and in outlining the facts of the case, stated that the case was the result of rivalry between two associations of the same nature. Complainant, who was the Chairman of the Chinese Athletic Association, received two letters at various dates. One was received on May 24 and the other on June 12 or 13, demanding the sum of $500, failing payment of which he would be assaulted. These letters had borne many names and included those of the six defendants.

At a later date a telephone message was received at the Chui Hop rice shop, No. 51 Shapao Road, Kowloon City, near where complainant was staying, and the master of the shop sent out a servant to call complainant. Complainant was proceeding to the shop when he was assaulted by about ten men, six of whom he recognised as the defendants. These men were all armed with scissiors. As the result of this assault, complainant was admitted to the Kowloon Hospital.

The matter was taken to the police but for some reason or other they did not wish to take the matter in hand, but some days later complainant saw fit to take out summonses against the men.

DOGS WITHOUT MUZZLES

SEVERAL OWNERS FINED.

Several dog-owners were summoned before Mr. Macfadyen at the Central Magistracy this morning for allowing their dogs to be in public thoroughfares unmuzzled and unleashed.

R. R. Wood, of 109, Wongnei-chung Road, Happy Valley, was cautioned on pleading guilty to allowing his black and white fox-terrier abroad unmuzzled on July 10. He stated that the dog broke away from its lead.

A fine of $8 was imposed on A. J. Reed, of 8 Broadwood Road. It was stated that his white chow dog was found wandering in the roadway unmuzzled and unleashed, on July 6, and the police had received complaints about this particular dog. A foki appeared on behalf of defendant.

W. Pittendrigh, of 18A, Macdonnell Road, was fined $5 on admitting a summons of allowing his brown chow dog to be abroad unmuzzled in Macdonnell Road on July 13. He stated that when the dog, which was only five months old and had been inoculated against rabies, left his house, it had a muzzle, but when it came back in the custody of a policeman, the muzzle was gone and later found in a broken condition in an alleyway at the back of the house.

THRILLING DAVIS CUP STRUGGLE

AMERICA'S NARROW VICTORY

QUESTIONABLE DECISION

London, July 23.
America regained the lead in the final round of the Davis Cup competition, winning the doubles event from Germany to-day, but only after a thrilling fight. Allison and Van Ryn, runners-up in the Wimbledon tourney, only pulled the match out of the fire in the last minute after the German pair, Von Cramm and Lund, had wanted match point five times.

The scores were: 3-6, 6-3, 5-7, 9-7, 8-6.
It was a match of remarkable quality, one of the most spectacular Wimbledon's stands have seen in a long time. Von Cramm served aces consistently and returned Allison's cannon-ball service splendidly, giving Lund opportunities to kill at the net.

The Germans set a terrific pace from the first, and won the first set in nineteen minutes. The Americans continually crowded the net. In the second set, which the Americans won in twelve minutes, they were volleying magnificently.

The Germans led 5-2 in the third set, and then wilted and allowed the Americans to force them to twelve games.

NEAR TO VICTORY

In the fourth set it seemed certain that the Germans would win the match. Twice they were fighting for match point in the tenth game. But Allison stormed the net and saved the situation by brilliant volleying.

The fifth set was perhaps the most thrilling of all. The Americans still maintained a terrific pace, and led at 4-1. The Germans pulled up to 5-4, however. Von Cramm was superb in every department and Lund was crashing through service aces. Three times the Germans wanted match point, but each time the Americans rallied. With the Americans taking their turn in a struggle for match point, on Allison's service, there was great tension. Allison's winning ace, however, was generally considered six inches out, so that the end was unsatisfactory for the winners and heartbreaking for the losers.

It was conceded that the winners of the doubles match would take the round, for there is little chance that Henkel, Germany's No. 2, can beat the great Allison in their singles tilt, though Von Cramm will almost certainly beat Budge.—Reuter.

TIN MARKET

GOVERNMENT TO BE QUESTIONED

London, July 23.
On the metal market, the cash price of tin was down to £233 per ton after yesterday's sudden rise to £245.

Questions are to be asked in the House of Commons to-morrow regarding yesterday's events and what action the Government proposes to take through representations to the International Tin Control Committee.—British Wireless.

NUISANCE CAUSED BY RUBBISH

EUROPEAN FIRM FINED

J. Hennessey Seth, of Messrs. Percy Smith, Seth and Fleming, owners of premises at 31, Gage Street, ground floor, was fined $5 by Mr. Schofield at the Central Magistracy this morning on a summons for failing to comply with a notice served by the Sanitary Board to abate a nuisance, namely the accumulation of household refuse on the roof of the kitchen.

Defendant stated that he gave instructions to the contractor to have the rubbish removed and the Sanitary Inspector very kindly notified him (Mr. Seth) that the work had not been done. Further instructions were given, and defendant understood the work had been completed. The premises were vacant and it was difficult to keep them clear. They had tried to do something; it was not as though they had ignored the notice.

The Magistrate agreed that it was a difficult problem and suggested that a watchman be employed to go round the premises. Defendant: At the present state of the property market that is rather an expensive luxury! Sanitary Inspector W. Fogwill prosecuted.

JAPANESE FLIER'S PLANS

LEAVING HONGKONG TO-MORROW

Katsutaro Ano, the Japanese aviator, who is flying from England to Osaka, and who arrived in the Colony last Friday, will, climatic conditions being favourable, leave for Shanghai via Amoy to-morrow morning.

It was Ano's intention to hop off from Kai Tak to-day but in view of last night's storm and the present unsettled condition of the weather he has postponed his departure.

Ano will stop at Amoy for about half an hour on his way to Shanghai.
